

Pentagon Courier Seized for Selling Secrets to Soviets

WASHINGTON (AP) — FBI agents seized two men today — including a Pentagon courier who was missing for two months last fall — on charges of selling U.S. defense secrets to the Soviet Union.

Agents arrested Army Sgt. Robert Lee Johnson, 43, of Alexandria, Va., at the Pentagon, and James Allen Mintkenbaugh, 46, of San Martin, Calif. Mintkenbaugh was arrested in Castro Valley, Calif.

The two were arrested after the FBI filed a complaint in U.S. District Court at Alexandria, Va., charging they conspired together and with a Russian, Vitaly Ourjournov, and others, to obtain and deliver to Russia information on the national defense of the United States.

Ourjournov is named as a co-conspirator in the complaint. He formerly was assigned to the Russian Embassy in Paris and reportedly is now in Russia, the FBI said.

Johnson, according to the complaint, was recruited to spy for the Soviets while stationed in Berlin in 1953. The FBI said he recruited Mintkenbaugh in was in the Army.

The FBI said they were "particularly concerned with furnishing classified information relating to military installations, missile sites and intelligence activities of the U.S. government at both foreign and domestic locations."

The complaint said both men had received various sums of money from the Soviets. During a period between February 1957 and April 1958, the FBI said, from the Russians while he was assigned to an unidentified Nike missile site in California. He is accused of having furnished photographs of technical manuals on the site, as well as photos of portions of the site itself, to the Soviet Union through Mintkenbaugh.

Johnson mysteriously disappeared from his home in Alexandria last Oct. 2. The FBI said he had removed $2,000 from his bank account and taken his new self, to the Soviet Union through Mintkenbaugh.

"It is impossible to calculate the moral mischief, if I may so express it, that mental lying has produced in society. When a man has so far corrupted and prostituted the chastity of his mind, as to subscribe his professional belief to things he does not believe, he has prepared himself for the commission of every other crime."

20 Persons Killed, 200 Hurt As Quake Strikes Greece

ATHENS, Greece, (AP) — A violent earthquake struck the center of the Peloponnese Peninsula today, killing at least 20 persons and injuring 200. Police said the final death toll might go as high as 30.

The victims were in a score of villages in the Megalopolis area 100 miles southwest of Athens. They were caught in the wreckage of collapsing houses as they slept.

Fifty of the injured were in serious condition.

Thousands wandered dazed through the ruins.

Five of the worst hit villages were 90 per cent destroyed and uninhabitable.

The rolling quake hit at 5:13 a.m. It destroyed 2,000 homes and left many villages cut off from all communication.

Megalopolis was hard hit and the population of 2,507 was in panic.

Premier George Papandreu held an emergency Cabinet meeting and declared the area an emergency zone.

Relief forces were rushed to the area with medical supplies, tents and blankets.

Athens slept through the shock undisturbed. The capital had felt two lighter tremors last week.

It was Greece's fourth earthquake within a week, the third fatal quake in a month and the most violent in years.

A sharp quake struck Patras March 31, destroying hundreds of homes and causing four deaths. One person was killed and one injured in an earth shock on the island of Alonissos March 9.

The worst quake in Greece in recent years was in 1953, in the Ionian Islands. Hundreds were killed and thousands made homeless.

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Sixty-six U.S. Navy and Air Force planes attacked targets in North Viet Nam today. A U.S. spokesman said one Air Force plane was downed by Communist groundfire, and the pilot was recovered.

No enemy aircraft were reported sighted. Communist MIG fighters shot down two U.S. supersonic jets Sunday in the first air clash of the Viet Nam war and got away in the haze.

The Navy raid, launched from the carrier Coral Sea, was against the Vinh Lanh early warning radar installation just north of the 17th Parallel border, a U.S. spokesman said.

Thirty Skyraider, Skyhawk and Skywarrior planes hit the target with 25 tons of general-purpose bombs from 250 to 1,000 pounds in size. They also used napalm.

The strike planes were supported by about 20 Crusaders and Phantom fighters flying suppression and interceptor missions.

A U.S. spokesman said the target "was heavily damaged." He said the weather was clear, visibility good and no anti-aircraft fire was encountered.

A flight of 16 U.S. Air Force jets struck rail lines and highways in North Viet Nam today, blowing up at least one train. Red groundfire was reported "moderate."

A U.S. spokesman said a F105 Thunderchief was shot down, but the pilot was recovered.

He said 10 F105 strike planes using rockets and cannons ranged over routes 7 and 8 about 120 miles south of the North Vietnamese capital of Hanoi. Six other jets flew over and took photographs.

One diesel train exploded during the 30-minute raid, and another locomotive and two trucks were left in flames.

U.S. Ambassador Maxwell D. Taylor returned from policy talks in Washington and hinted that the United States will broaden its role in the fight against the Communists.

Taylor told an airport news conference that there was no sign that the North Vietnamese regime wants peace talks at this time.

"I believe it should be clear to friend and foe alike," he said, "that our commitment here is irrevocable and I will be discussing with Prime Minister (Phan Huy) Quat and other members of his government additional ways which our common effort can be strengthened during the weeks ahead."

A U.S. crew chief on an armed helicopter was killed when the aircraft crashed in South Viet Nam's central highlands.

The helicopter apparently lost power, skidded 60 yards when it hit the ground and caught fire, a U.S. spokesman said.

In addition to the two U.S. jets shot down by the Communist MIGs Sunday U.S. officials in Saigon said heavy Red groundfire downed a number of other aircraft that made the 60-plane

U.S. Officials Embarrassed By Loss in Viet Air Fight

By FRED S. HOFFMAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. officials were embarrassed today because the Air Force came off second best in the first air combat with Communist fighters since the Korean war.

To deepen the embarrassment, the Communist MIGs shot down two of this country's modern fighter-bombers over North Viet Nam with models dating back to the Korean war period.

Gen. J. P. McConnell, Air Force chief of staff, was reported to be irked over the incident. As one source put it: "When they get ours and we don't get theirs, you know how he feels."

A report reaching here said the pilot of an F100 fighter, escorting the F105 fighter-bombers on a strike against a key rail and highway bridge, thought he winged a MIG with a 20mm cannon shot.

However, confirmation of such a hit was lacking. The six attacking MIGs disappeared back into a haze from which they jumped the fighter bombers.

The MIGs bore North Vietnamese markings and presumably were part of 30 such aircraft based at fields near Hanoi.

McConnell, Gen. Earle G. Wheeler, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and others were in the Pentagon on Sunday reading the cable reports on the incident.

No official would speak out publicly but their discomfiture was evident from private remarks.

The Defense Department issued an unusual Sunday statement which played down the loss of the two F105s and other aircraft, and emphasized results of U.S. and South Vietnamese air strikes against three important bridges in North Viet Nam.

The Pentagon said the strikes "inflicted serious damage" by running the bridges, which it attacking MIGs disappeared

Filmland Ready for Big Oscar Awards Tonight

By JAMES BACON

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Will it be Julie Andrews or Sophia Loren tonight — Oscar night?

That seems to be the major item of suspense as Hollywood dresses up for its biggest show — the 37th annual Academy Awards.

Divers Reach Four Trapped in Arkansas Cave

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Ark. (AP) — Skin divers today reached four spelunkers trapped in Rowland Cave near here and reported that all were safe.

The four explorers were found in a small room where they climbed to escape rising waters which trapped them early Sunday.

The rescue team planned to bring them out of the cave by carrying diving equipment to them.

Word that the men were safe came by walkie-talkie radio carried by one of the rescuers.

William Karras, safety officer for the National Speleological society and director of the rescue effort, said it would take some time to get the men out.

A team of Navy divers and Karras flew into Mountain View today and two professional divers from Louisiana volunteered their services.

When the nominations first were announced six weeks ago, Miss Andrews looked like the odds-on favorite — almost a shoo-in.

But things have changed.

Actors, who only nominate their fellow actors and actresses, made Miss Andrews one of the five top actress nominees and excluded Audrey Hepburn, who did the screen version of "My Fair Lady."

Julie, who created the Eliza Doolittle role on Broadway, was overlooked for the movie version. That may have triggered the actors' snub of Miss Hepburn.

But for Oscar itself, all members of the academy vote. "My Fair Lady," in its screenings for the academy membership, drew the biggest crowds in Oscar history. One night 300 persons, including Greer Garson, were turned away. The academy had to run an extra screening.

Talk in the lobby after the screenings made much of Audrey's performance and scores of members asked how she could have been overlooked.

As a result, the Oscar race, often a popularity contest, evolved into a form race. That's where Miss Loren, winner in 1963, entered the picture.

Her "Marriage, Italian Style," second only to "My Fair Lady" in audience turnout, was widely regarded as the classic performance of the five nominees.

The others, besides Miss Andrews ("Mary Poppins") were (Turn to Page A4, Column 2)

While no new talks were immediately scheduled, Wagner urged the printers and publishers Sunday night to continue to make "every conceivable effort" to settle the dispute over economic issues. Wagner said he had studied a report from Theodore H. Kheel, his labor adviser, and found the situation difficult but one that could be solved without a strike.

There were two other major newspaper labor developments across the country.

The Youngstown, Ohio, Vindicator, struck for the first time in its 75-year history last Aug. 18, announced Sunday it had reached an agreement with the American Newspaper Guild. The members of striking Local 11 will vote on whether to ratify the agreement, and terms were withheld pending the action.

In Portland, Ore., the last pickets around the city's two daily newspapers — the Oregonian and the Oregon Journal — were removed after 5½ years. Members of the typographical and mailers unions voted to declare the newspapers — members of the S.I. Newhouse group — an open shop. Union officials said this means their members (Turn to Page A4, Column 6)

The decision was made by locals of the Typographical and Mailers Unions. The executive board of the local Guild said it concurred.

The unions voted Sunday to declare the Oregonian, a morning newspaper, and the Oregon Journal, published in the afternoon, an open shop. A statement said this meant members of the unions can ask for jobs at the newspapers without any union prejudice.

The stereotypers called the strike on Nov. 10, 1959, but stopped prosecuting it two years ago. So did the pressmen, paper handlers and photoengravers. The National Guild stopped support in late 1960.

The newspapers continued publication throughout the labor dispute, at first as a combined newspaper but later resuming separate publication.

Both papers are owned by Samuel I. Newhouse and now are printed in the same building. He owned the Oregonian when the strike started and purchased the Journal on Aug. 5, 1961.

Of the 850 employees originally affected, the union said only 150 still received union benefits. The remainder either have moved from Portland or found other work.

Along with wheat, the farm bill proposed a two-year extension of the feed grains program and a four-year extension of the wool stabilization program, both with some changes; a sharp modification in the rice support program; a cropland retirement system offering rental payments for land taken out of surplus crops and authority for farmers to sell, lease or otherwise transfer acreage planting allotments.

The measure contained no recommendations for either the cotton program or for creation of an emergency food reserve, both of which Johnson had mentioned in a special farm message on Feb. 4.

Administration officials said cotton wasn't included because no agreement has been reached on possible improvements. The food reserve plan still is being studied.

The wheat program, which would cover two years, would work this way:

Former New York Girl Becomes Sikkim Queen

By TALBOT PATRICK

GANGTOK, Sikkim (AP) — Religious rites a dozen centuries old sanctified Palden Thondup Namgyal Sunday as Sikkim's "religious and righteous ruler and defender of the faith."

Part of the rites also made the maharaja's 24-year-old second wife, the former Hope Cooke of New York, the queen of the tiny Himalayan kingdom between India and Tibet.

The ceremony was held in the royal chapel of the palace grounds. Lamas and monks from the country's leading monasteries had been observing religious rituals there for the past 10 days.

The "administering of power of the Golden Throne" by the holy man lasted an hour and a half. Another hour was given over to three addresses in English, Sikkimese and Nepali to express the nation's loyalty to the ruler.

The maharaja replied in a speech from the throne.

 WARSAW, Poland, (AP) — Viet Nam, Red China and Germany are the issues facing the Communist leaders of the Soviet Union and Poland at solidarity meetings in Poland this week.

Western diplomats wonder if the get-together of Soviet party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev and Premier Alexei N. Kosygin and their staunch Polish ally, Wladyslaw Gomulka, could set the stage for a new Berlin crisis.

They reason that the Russians and Poles may consider renewing pressure on Berlin to divert attention from the difficult position which the U.S. bombings of North Viet Nam have placed the Soviets in the eyes of the Communist world.

24 From Dist. Re-2 (J) To Compete in Spelldown

School district Re-2(J) selected its crack spelling team Friday to compete in the county-wide contest to be held Saturday, April 10 at the Fremont County courthouse at Canon City. It was announced this week by L. L. Lancaster, principal of the Fremont Elementary school in Florence.

A total of 24 top spellers from sixth, seventh and eighth grades through the district entered the district competition held at the Fremont Elementary school March 26.

In the written contest, 50 words were pronounced by Principal Lancaster. The top 12 students in the written contest then participated in the oral spelling contest which followed.

Those taking part in the oral spelldown, with Principal C. D. Snyder of Fremont Junior high school pronouncing the words, were Joe Cornella, Mary Byer, Sally Howard, Kristine Slack, Jeannie Perrino, Marilyn McMullen, Susan Ponzholtz, Gail Kimbrel, Carole Miller, Betty Estes, Peggy Draper, and Cindy Canterbury.

Topping the oral spellers were Mary Byer, first; Peggy Draper, second; Kristine Slack, third; and Joe Cornella.

Joe Cornella, who scored the only perfect paper in the written test, is the county's defending champion. He took top honors last spring at Canon City in the county meet and represented this area in the state meet at Denver.

The district team, who will represent eastern Fremont county in the meet, April 10 at Canon City, include the following: Joe Cornella, Peggy Draper, Sally Howard, Gail Kimbrel, Jeannie Perrino, Kristine Slack, Susan Ponzholtz, Gail Kimbrel, Carole Miller, Betty Estes, Peggy Draper, and Cindy Canterbury.

It guarantees each person the freedom and the rights which allow him to try to succeed, but not success itself. Anyone is free to launch a business, but his customers are free to take their patronage elsewhere. Competition is the finest regulator.

The strength of our economy, and our ability to grow and progress, lies in the vitality of the decision making of literally hundreds of thousands of individuals in business around the country. Whether the "management" of a business is a boy pushing a lawnmower, a widow-investing in a dress shop, a newly graduated professional man deciding where to locate his office, or a corporation president finalizing plans for erecting a skyscraper, the basis for decision is always the same.

Each of these managers seeks to earn a profit on his invested capital or endeavor. And each is responsible for his own actions. If he fails to provide the quality of product or service desired by the public, he will not only fail to gain a profit, he will lose his capital. This is economic freedom in action; and constitutes the dynamic force of progress.

In the normal flow of business, we always find the freedom to succeed counter-balanced by the freedom to fail. And our economy gets into trouble every time we tamper with this counterbalance. The subsidization of failure only tends to multiply failure. H.L.H.

Specific Boycott Is Urged for Alabama

LOS ANGELES (AP) — James Farmer, national director of the Congress of Racial Equality, said he believes any boycott of Alabama industries should be specific, rather than general.

Farmer told newsmen Sunday that CORE would issue a complete statement later in the week concerning the idea advanced earlier by Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

"Dr. King needs to spell out the idea in greater detail, and point out specific targets, such as certain industries which practice racial discrimination in employment," Farmer said.

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — Fahad Nasser Al Saud, 24, a nephew of King Saud of Saudi Arabia, was booked on suspicion of drunken driving after he was involved in an auto accident, the California Highway Patrol reported.

The University of California at Santa Barbara student was driving alone Sunday when he apparently lost control of his car on a curve, officers said. It ripped out 12 feet of guard rail on a boulevard near U.S. highway 101. Officers said he was released without bail.

Dillon Resignation Accepted by Johnson

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson accepted with reluctance and unstinting praise, the resignation of Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon Wednesday.

The effective date will be when Henry Fowler, whom Johnson has named to succeed Dillon, assumes the post.

Dillon said in a letter to Johnson dated March 15 that after 12 years of government service he felt he must return to private life. But he also told the President he hoped to be called on again from time to time in the coming years if he can be of any help.

In a letter of acceptance, dated Tuesday, Johnson said he fully intended to call on Dillon again but gave no clue as to when or in what capacity. Dillon is a Republican, a former ambassador to France, and undersecretary of state.

VA Hospitals to Undergo Inspection

BATH, N.Y. (AP) — A government inspection committee left here late Friday en route to Veterans Administration hospital facilities in Massachusetts and Colorado.

VA director William J. Driver was accompanied by five VA representatives and a representative of the General Services Administration.

Driver said his report to President Johnson on planned closings of VA hospitals might have some effect on the shut-down order, but, Driver said, "That's just speculation now."

The VA has proposed the closing of 11 hospitals, including a facility at Grand Junction, Colo.

U.S. Officials Embarrassed by Viet Nam Loss

called "vital links in the North Vietnamese transportation system supporting Communist guerrilla operations in South Viet Nam and Laos."

The vital importance of these bridges to the North Vietnamese was indicated by the heavy aircraft defenses and by the fact that MIG interceptors aircraft were employed for the first time," it added.

The Pentagon statement, unlike official information given out in Saigon, did not mention that the Thanh Hoa bridge had to be hit a second time Sunday.

There had been unconfirmed reports that the bridge had been damaged in an attack the day before.

because it had been only slight reports that U.S. bombing accuracy in the attacks into North Viet Nam has been something less than first rate.

The Thanh Hoa bridge where the F105s were hit is about 17 miles south of Hanoi. The Dong Phuong Thuong bridge is about 16 miles northeast of Thanh Hoa. The third bridge, near Dong Hoi, is about 50 miles north of the boundary separating North and South Viet Nam.

There were indications that Maj. Gen. Joseph Moore, the Air Force commander in South Viet Nam, would be asked for explanations of the way the Thanh Hoa mission was conducted.

Among other things, Air Force authorities were reported concerned because the two F105s were downed while orbiting over the target area as they prepared for their bomb run, instead of some distance away.

Caught with a heavy bomb load — possibly as much as 13,000 pounds — the F105s reportedly could not maneuver or reach the speeds they are capable of when not so weighted down.

Questions were raised, too, about the combat air patrols — the F100 fighters flying above the bombers with the expressed mission of watching for enemy air attack and defending the bombers from such attack.

Officials were unable to explain why the patrol in this case was caught by surprise. But they said that such cover can never be expected to be air tight.

The U.S. jets were said to be armed with Sidewinder missiles, but only one of these reportedly was fired at the departing MIGs. The Sidewinder seeks out its target by homing in on heat from an enemy plane's engine. It does not require good visibility for a hit.

There was no explanation why more Sidewinders were not fired at the MIGs.

to get the necessary impressions. The medium goes into a trance and the alleged ghost operates her vocal cords and speaks directly to Hans. It tells him his troubles and he helps it find peace. The spirit leaves the place it has been haunting and everybody is greatly relieved.

Catherine is the great-great-granddaughter of Catherine the Great and a countess in her own right — the daughter of Count and Countess Alexander Buxhoeveden.

She also is a talented artist who combines painting with ghost hunting.

"If the setting looks interesting enough I paint it, trying to capture the atmosphere of the place," she says.

The Holzer apartment is hung with Catherine's moody recreations of haunted houses in the West Indies and the United States. She plans to put some of Europe's spookier spots on canvas this summer.

That will be after Hans, author of "The Ghost Hunter," sees his latest book published. "Ghosts I've Met," and finishes filming a documentary television series on his favorite subject.

Catherine insists that daughter, Nadine Joan de Buxhoeveden Holzer, almost 2, plays the harmonica with precocious skill. "Nadine is also probably somewhat psychic — children frequently are more so than adults — but we all are to a certain extent," says Catherine.

Cut of $200 Million in Farm Program Urged

food use would be supported at the parity price goal of federal farm programs, which, in the case of this grain, is about $2.50 a bushel. Under the present program domestic consumption of wheat is supported at $2.

As in the case now, all wheat grown by farmers complying with the program by holding down acreages would be eligible for price supports at about $1.25 a bushel, the same as at present.

The millers would have to pay $1.25 a bushel on all wheat milled for domestic consumption compared with 75 cents now. Money paid by millers through purchase of marketing certificates would go to farmers complying with the program on the basis of their share of the domestic food wheat market of about 500 million bushels.

This would mean that wheat for domestic food use would cost millers at least 50 cents a bushel more than at present. They would be expected to pass this cost on to consumers in the form of higher prices for flour, bread and other wheat food products.

The $1.25 wheat support would be at or near the world market price—a fact that would permit the elimination of the present export certificate and export subsidy on wheat moving abroad.

The elimination of these devices would bring an annual saving of around $150 million a year to the government.

Under the present program, exporters must buy export certificates at 30 cents a bushel—returns from which also go to cooperating growers.

With cooperating growers getting 50 cents a bushel more on their share of the wheat used domestically, the government would eliminate the export certificate.

As under the present program, farmers would be free to ignore the program and increase wheat acreage. But they would be ineligible for either price supports or returns from marketing certificates.

Debbie Reynolds ("The Unsinkable Molly Brown"); Anne Bancroft ("The Pumpkin Eater"); and Kim Stanley ("Seance on a Wet Afternoon").

Among the men, Rex Harrison is the favorite for his professor Higgins of "My Fair Lady." The other nominees are Richard Burton ("Becket"); Anthony Quinn ("Zorba the Greek"); and Peter Sellers ("Dr. Strangelove").

"My Fair Lady" is rated a shoo-in for best picture, best direction and most of its 12 nominations.

Harrison, Miss Loren and Quinn all came from Europe for the affair. So did loser Hepburn, who won a lot of points in sportsmanship by coming from Spain to present the best actor Oscar in place of ailing Patricia Neal.

Bob Hope, as usual, will be the master of ceremonies.

"The best acting of the year will be done by me," says Hope. "I will smile at all the winners."

The results will be carried over ABC-TV and radio plus the Armed Forces Radio Service. Showtime is 10 p.m. (EST).

Bill Allen Wins Second PBA Tourney

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — "I'd like to do this every week," said Bill Allen when he picked up his $5,000 winner's check at the Professional Bowlers Association's Insurance City Classic.

The 30-year-old left-hander from Orlando, Fla., had just beaten Nelson Burton Jr. of St. Louis — for the second time in two weekends.

Burton was off his game in the championship match Saturday, rolling a 177 to Allen's 231. Allen beat Burton 206-190 in Buffalo, N.Y. the previous week.

The victory raised Allen's earnings for this year to $15,995. Second place money was $2,500, while Jack Biondillo of Houston, Tex., picked up $1,500 for third place and $1,300 went to fourth place finisher Gary Martineau of Nashville, Tenn.

Allen's back to back tournament victories recalled his consecutive triumphs last year at the PBA New Orleans Open and at Mobile, Ala.

Teaching Career Month Being Observed Locally

April is Teaching Career Month, and the Colorado Springs Public Schools, Future Teachers of America, and the Colorado Springs Education Association are making a special effort to inform outstanding high school students and their parents of the advantages of a teaching career.

At the same time the three local sponsors of the TCM observance are pointing out the need for careful consideration in the choice of a teaching field. Both locally, and nationally, the supply now exceeds the demand for teachers in some fields.

The greatest need now and in the foreseeable future, according to the National Education Association, is at the elementary level. In 1964 the colleges produced 105,600 graduates qualified to teach in high school, but only 68,250 graduates prepared for elementary school teaching.

The total number of high school positions in the country is now 650,000, and elementary positions number 925,000. This indicates the supply of new high school teachers is seriously out of balance with the needs of the schools, NEA says.

The NEA study shows the greatest shortages of high school teachers are in mathematics, foreign languages, and English, in that order. The biggest oversupply is in speech, boys physical education, and art. Music and the social sciences are other overcrowded fields.

The situation in the Colorado Springs Public Schools differs somewhat from the NEA report. Robert L. Davis, assistant superintendent for personnel, says the need here is greatest for physics and chemistry teachers.

The next biggest demand is for foreign language, mathematics, girls physical education, and English teachers.

Biology teachers are plentiful, and so are instrumental teachers, but there is a shortage of vocal music teachers, age of vocal music teachers, Davis says. In speaking of teacher supply and demand, Davis emphasized that he was speaking only of well-trained, highly competent teachers.

He says he receives more job applications from social science teachers than from teachers in any other field. The next largest number of applicants are boys physical education, and in any other field. The next speech, and business teachers.

Although he advises high school students to consider these facts carefully before starting their preparation for teaching, he also emphasizes that there will always be a need for outstanding young teachers in the high schools and in all subjects.

maharaja, each giver turned to the left and presented another scarf to the maharaja, who sat at her husband's right on a dais about 18 inches lower.

High civil and military officials of the government of India followed the ruler's relatives.

Mrs. Lakshmi Menon, Indian minister of state, presented a gift from her government. She announced the appointment of the maharaja as an honorary major general in the Indian army.

Ambassadors, bearing scarves and gifts, included those to India of Austria, France, Japan, Switzerland and Turkey, and the U.S. ambassador to Nepal, the nation adjoining Sikkim on the west.

Guests who had attended the ceremony were given luncheon in a large tent set up near the palace.

The thousands waiting outside the palace grounds were provided with food under patterned awnings set up like tent roofs without walls.

Those who had witnessed the coronation were entertained at dinner by the royal couple.

The new ruler's father, Maharaja Tashi, died in December 1963. Court oracles decided the most auspicious date for his son to be enthroned was 16 months later.

U.S. Planes Pound North Viet Nam; Two Jets Lost

attack on a strategic bridge 65 miles south of Hanoi.

Officials did not disclose the total number of planes lost because rescue efforts were still going on. A South Vietnamese spokesman said three South Vietnamese Skyraiders were hit on another raid, that one returned safely to its base and the pilots of the other two planes were missing.

A Communist Chinese dispatch claimed 37 U.S. and South Vietnamese planes were brought down, but it made no mention of the MIGs.

Both American planes hit by the MIGs crashed into the sea. The body of one pilot was picked up by rescue ships.

The pilot of a U.S. Air Force propeller-driven Skyraider also went down into the sea when his plane was hit by fire from Red gunboats. He was listed as missing.

Hanoi radio said North Vietnamese militiamen in Thanh Hoa Province captured two U.S. pilots, one on April 3 and another on April 4. The pilots were not identified.

Defense Department sources in Washington said an American fighter may have winged one of the North Vietnamese fighters, identified as MIG 15s and 17s of Korean war vintage.

They said the pilot of an American F100 jet flying cover for the U.S. F105 fighter-bombers believed a 20mm. cannon shot he fired hit one of the attackers.

The U.S. craft have far greater speed than the outdated Communist jets. But they apparently were flying at low level, were in a circling pattern to get at a comparatively small target and could not use their maximum speed or maneuverability.

Maj. Gen. Joseph H. Moore, U.S. Air Force commander in South Viet Nam, said the MIGs bearing North Vietnamese markings attacked in three waves while the U.S. jets were pounding the 600-foot suspension bridge and power station at Thanh Hoa.

The first flight of four MIGs pounced out of the haze as the American Thunderchiefs circled for a bomb run on the bridge. Caught by surprise the two lead planes in the American formation limped toward the sea with cannon hits and crashed.

A second wave of three MIGs came in with guns blazing but missed a flight of U.S. rescue cover fighters. The MIGs swung around for another run, but the American jets dumped their bombs and the Reds escaped back into the haze.

A third flight of two MIGs appeared briefly and opened fire, but they quickly swung into the haze without scoring any hits.

Despite the attacks, Moore said, the Americans continued plastering the bridge for 45 minutes, rendering it unusable. The power plant was reported about 75 per cent destroyed.

While the raid went on, 36 South Vietnamese planes hit the Ho Chi Minh bridge near the southern border and 41 U.S. Navy planes riddled a North Vietnamese coastal railroad and National Route 1 running south.

A South Vietnamese military spokesman said the 380-foot Ho Chi Minh bridge was completely destroyed.

It was learned in Bangkok, Thailand, that the Thunderchiefs that hit Thanh Hoa took off from the U.S. air base of Korat, about 300 miles southwest of the border between North and South Viet Nam.

The U.S. Defense Department said the weekend air strikes against the highway and railroad bridges "inflicted serious damage to Communist North Viet Nam's only major north-south line of communication."

In the ground war, Viet Cong terrorists mined the train running from Saigon to Nha Trang for the second time in three days. Five persons were injured, three seriously.

Seven cars were derailed when a mine went off under the track near Di An, 10 miles north of Saigon.

Hanoi radio charged today that the United States on Jan. 18 dropped "lethal asphyxiating gases" similar to those used in World War I on a hamlet in South Viet Nam. A Defense Department spokesman in Washington said the charge was "a bunch of damn lies."

Spokesmen for the Times, Daily News and Herald Tribune reported no labor difficulties in publishing their Monday morning editions. The News and Times said they finished their press runs early. The Tribune said its deadlines were normal.

The printers originally called a strike for 2 a.m. Wednesday, but it was averted when the publishers, after the talks at City Hall, agreed to negotiate beyond a package of $10.50 a week over two years. The printers union, representing 2,700 employees, had said the $10.50 package — tentatively accepted by four other newspaper unions — was not enough.

Two of the four unions which tentatively accepted the $10.50 package — the pressmen and paper handlers unions — met Sunday and rejected the contract.

The four unions — the other two are the deliverers and stereotypers — said they accepted the $10.50 package after the publishers had assured them $10.50 was the limit. The deliverers abrogated their tentative agreement last Wednesday. The publishers said in a statement Thursday that the four unions which had accepted the $10.50 package would be offered the same dollar settlement the printers might eventually get.

The printers, who now earn $149 a week on the day shift, had asked for a wage increase of $15 a week and a one-year contract.

The New York Post bargains separately with the 10 newspaper unions.

The other seven papers, represented in the negotiations by the Publishers Association of New York City, are the Times, Herald-Tribune, Daily News, World Telegram & Sun, Journal-American, Long Island Daily Press and the Long Island Star-Journal. They employ more than 17,000 persons and have a combined daily circulation of 4 1/2 million.

Spectacular Accident Sends Man to Hospital

A spectacular one-car accident early Sunday morning resulted in severe injuries to the driver of the car and minor injuries to two passengers, police reported.

Michael R. Morales, 19, 2424 W. St. Vrain St., suffered a broken back, according to x-ray reports received from St. Francis Hospital where he was taken by E & E Ambulance following the accident. He was listed in fairly good condition this morning.

Carla De Angelo, 18, 706 W. Pikes Peak Ave., complained of her back hurting, and also had several cuts about the face, but refused medical attention.

Robert F. Thayer, 18, Ft. Carson, suffered a pain in his neck, but also refused medical attention.

The accident occurred at 4:15 a.m. Sunday when Morales, westbound on Utah Street, lost control of his car 119 feet east of 22nd Street. The car jumped the west curb of Utah Street and went into a vacant lot, traveled 145 feet, rolled completely over, then traveled another 30 feet and rolled over again. After the second roll the car traveled 17 feet further west, and then came to rest.

According to police, Morales was thrown from the vehicle, and was found lying on the ground 43 feet from where the car came to rest.

The car, a 1957 model Ford, was a total loss, according to police.

Manitou to Lose Two Policemen By Resignation

Resignations of two Manitou Springs policemen will probably be accepted at the next regular council meeting April 13, Mayor Lester Longaker said this morning.

Patrolman James Smith, who was recently appointed sergeant, had his resignation processed last Friday by the Police Committee. This committee is composed of Councilwoman Mabel Willie and Councilmen Z. A. Nevins, chairman, and Arthur Fannin.

The mayor said that Albert Licastro's resignation was handed him Friday morning. "Smith resigned for personal reasons," Longaker said. "I'm not sure why Licastro resigned. I have no idea what happened."

Longaker said Licastro's resignation was effective April 27 and Smith's when Chief Russell Paul returns from his vacation. "As far as we know, the chief will get back today from Wisconsin," Longaker said.

Last January there were published rumors that Licastro would resign to join the Fountain police force. However, Licastro never submitted a letter of resignation.

Licastro was hired as patrolman in June 1963 after being a police and fire dispatcher since April 1963.

Smith was hired as a patrolman in May 1963.

The two officers were the veterans on the force.

Two new patrolmen were hired early this year, giving Manitou a four-man force. Paul was named chief in May 1964.

He's A Fast Mover!

DEAR ABBY: I have had good figure for a woman her age, but she is aggressive and rather loud. I'm afraid if I fixed her up with any of my friends it might put a strain on our friendship. I like this woman, personally. How can this problem be tactfully handled? —CO—WORKER

DEAR CO—WORKER: A good rule for a matchmaker is: "Never arrange a date unless you feel that you are doing both parties a favor."

DEAR ABBY: I am 76 years old and live alone in a mobile home. When my husband was living, I had many friends. In fact, one year I received 81 Christmas cards. This mobile home is on a busy turnpike and it is difficult for my friends who drive to visit me, so consequently I have very few guests and I get terribly hungry for people to talk to.

It is true I am hard of hearing, but I do wear a hearing aid. Now I am told by my relatives that I talk too much. Yes, I admit I am deaf, but I see no reason why I should become mute, too, so I talk to my cat. Tell me, Abby, do you think it is possible for a person who loves people and enjoys conversation to talk too much?

—LONELY

DEAR LONELY: Yes — but you can overcome it. The next time you are with someone, make an effort to let that person talk without interrupting him.

DEAR ABBY: My problem is my voice. It is naturally very high pitched. Everybody says I sound like a baby and I am 14 years old. I don't talk baby

Driver of Old Car Did Not Have License

LIBERTYVILLE, Ill. (AP) — Two deputy sheriffs halted Frank Hoyer, 85, Wednesday as he was driving along Buckley Road north of Libertyville and asked: "What are you doing out here on the highway?"

"Just minding my own business," replied Hoyer, who lives in a one-room cottage in a field off Buckley Road.

The deputies, James Hession and Frank Wrobel, told Hoyer that some of his neighbors had complained of him driving on the road, and said he once drove at night without lights.

When the deputies asked Hoyer if he had a driver's license he replied: "Haven't had one for 10 years or so."

"You haven't got license plates, either," the deputies observed.

"Haven't bothered with them since 1946 or so," Hoyer replied.

"Don't you know you're a danger to other drivers on this road?" the deputies asked Hoyer.

"Can't see why. I can't get up to more than 20 miles an hour," Hoyer said as he patted his car, a 1914 model T Ford which he said he bought, second-hand, in 1917.

The deputies charged Hoyer with having no driver's license, with appearance in court April 14. They impounded his car and drove Hoyer home. He went into his cottage but returned with a slip of paper he showed the deputies.

It was a safe driver certificate issued to him in 1961 by an insurance company.

Underground Water Bills to Be Debated

DENVER (AP) — Two major bills concerning underground water have been scheduled for debate Monday in the Colorado House of Representatives.

One measure by Rep. Marvin Woolf, R-Boulder, would give the state engineer authority to seek a court injunction to enjoin anyone from diverting water by well, ditch or other means if it interferes with the rights of someone else.

The other proposal, by Rep. Everett Cook, D-Canon City, directs the engineer to deny permits for irrigation wells if they would interfere with the rights of others.

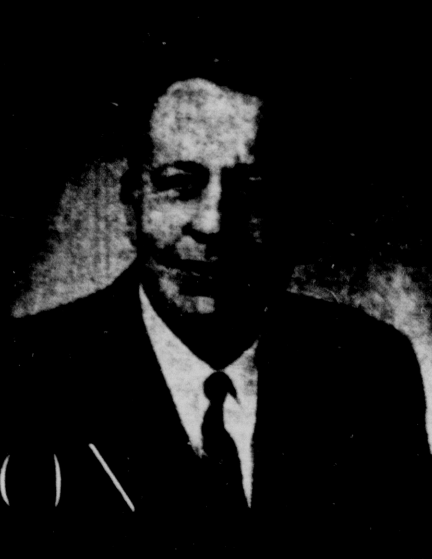

Other water bills are awaiting action in the Senate. Gov. John A. Love made water legislation one of his major priorities for the General Assembly in this session.

'Dr. Devlin' Sues Dr. Kildare Show

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Last April, the "Dr. Kildare" series televised an episode called "An Ungodly Act," depicting an unethical physician named Devlin who was also a lawyer and medical director of a small community hospital.

Wednesday Dr. Edward A. Devlin filed a $5-million defamation suit against the show's producers, sponsors and stars.

Dr. Devlin, who has a law degree and is medical director of the hospital in Oceanside, contends that the television play could not have been coincidental, that it brought him scorn and ridicule and that his practice has decreased.

In the play, Douglas Fairbanks Jr. portrayed "Dr. Devlin," but used a different first name.

Named as co-defendants were Fairbanks, Raymond Massey, Richard Chamberlain, the National Broadcasting Co., Time-Life Broadcasting Co. and others involved in the show's production.

Cherokees Protest Proposal for Dam

VONORE, Tenn. (AP) — U.S. Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas says he personally will give President Johnson a petition from the eastern band of the Cherokee Indian Nation protesting a proposed dam on the Little Tennessee River.

In a ceremony at nearby Choto Sunday, Douglas was given the petition opposing the Tellico Dam proposed by the Tennessee Valley Authority. Choto, once the sacred city of the Cherokee Nation, would be covered by the dam's reservoir.

Douglas said he would express to Johnson "the hope that this beautiful valley will not be destroyed by the hand of man."

Douglas was given the petition by Richard Crowe, an envoy in tribal regalia sent by Chief Jarret Blythe, 76, who was unable to make the trip from the Quall reservation near Cherokee, N.C.

Other opponents say the reservoir would inundate rich farmland. TVA contends the reservoir would create an industrial potential of $265 million in three counties in addition to providing flood control.

Safety Officials Turn Attention To Old Drivers

By RUSSELL LANE
CHICAGO (AP) — Safety officials are focusing attention on elderly drivers, considered by many authorities as a highway menace second only to teen-age hot rodders.

The problem was discussed Thursday by safety officials after an 85-year-old motorist was arrested in his 1914 auto without a driver's license. He told police, "I was just minding my own business."

But driving is increasingly the business of 96 million other drivers, including legislators, policemen, court officials, psychologists, engineers, insurance men and safety planners.

All are taking a hard look at the older driver. Ten states and the District of Columbia have special driver license examination laws applying to elderly motorists.

In general, these states get drivers into examining rooms periodically after they reach a specific age, ranging from 60 to 75.

Safety officials are inclined to smother talk of their findings about the oldsters with diplomatic soothing syrup, but some of their feeling comes through. Even though he's cautious, grandpa may be a highway menace.

Not only have a number of states acted on this supposition, but a few conservative insurance firms have declined to renew auto casualty and liability coverage for customers after they reach 64. Most continue insurance of old customers with good driving records. But they worry.

One insurance industry source estimated that in 1963 losses on auto liability coverage amounted to about $100 million, with more than $4.5 billion paid out in claims against about $4.4 billion collected in premiums.

National Safety Council records for 1963 showed that 23 of every 100 drivers in the 65-69 age group were involved in accidents. This record matches the 25-29 age group, but is lower than the teens and the 20-24 age group. The average for all ages is 21 drivers per 100. Yet, when drivers 70-74 are considered, the involvement rate is only 11 — the best of any group, and the percentage of those 75 or over who got into accidents was only 14.

Cause Sought For Light Plane Crash

402C 7 k5sk wk55d Crash 4-5 D
AKRON (UPI)—Federal Aviation Agency authorities searched today for clues to the cause of a light plane to crash on the northeastern Colorado prairies Sunday.

FAA officials identified the victim of the plane crash as Ivan J. (Dutch) Kinter, 33, of Carlsbad, N.M.

Kinter operated a bit grinding service and was flying to Canada to establish a similar operation. His flight plans indicated he was trying to make Rapid City, S.D., Sunday before the accident occurred.

FAA weather stations in Thurmond and Akron, Colo., said Kinter, flying a single-engine Piper Cub, reported to them that he was flying at 10,500 feet, above the wet snowy weather. He also reported to the FAA he expected to fly in clear skies over Scottsbluff, Neb.

The plane crashed 14 miles north and three miles east of Akron. The plane was demolished. Kinter's body was taken to the Akron mortuary.

Artist Refuses To Wear Old Historic Costume

COLUMBIA, Calif. (AP) — Charles Surendorf, a 56-year-old artist who wouldn't trade his conservative brown tweed suit for a 49ers' costume, is packing up his canvases and closing his gallery after 18 years in this restored gold rush town.

Surendorf said Friday he will not contest the state's legal action to evict him.

"It would cost me too much," he said. "They have all the taxpayers' money behind them."

Surendorf has been running a one-man show at his gallery since 1947. When the state took over the town and restored its buildings as a monument to the gold rush era, others signed concession contracts agreeing to wear clothing of the miners of that day.

Not Surendorf.

"Why should I wear a costume?" he asked.

"The state is making the place a carnival. I'm not going to be party to a fraud."

How did the costume idea get started?

"Two old ladies who have very ugly legs thought this up," he said. "They wanted to cover them up with those long skirts, and the State Park Commission went along."

Surendorf was under orders to conform to the clothing order or close his shop by midnight Thursday.

But Friday morning he opened his gallery, dressed as usual in a tweed suit.

Word of legal action by the state to evict him, however, changed the artist's mind. On Wednesday he will put everything in storage.

"I'm not going to move out. I've got three kids to support. I think I'll start a book on Columbia, about the state and its part in Columbia from the beginning. How it has prostituted the town, really changed its complexion," he said.

The family's only remaining artist will be daughter Karla, he said, a 22-year-old designer of pop art jewelry in New York's Greenwich Village where clothes don't make the man or woman.

Cardinal Meyer Suffers Relapse

CHICAGO (AP) — Doctors have ordered Albert Cardinal Meyer returned to tube feeding after the prelate suffered another slight relapse.

A spokesman for Mercy Hospital, where the cardinal underwent brain surgery for a cancerous tumor Feb. 25, said Sunday the Chicago archbishop "is not in a coma, but he does sleep most of the time."

Doctors said Cardinal Meyer suffered a relapse March 26 and went into another decline over the weekend. His condition is aggravated by a persistent swelling in his left leg, which has been attributed to a blood clot.

ANSWERS TO BRIDGE QUIZ

By CHARLES H. GOREN

Q. 1—As South you hold:

Spades, J-6; Hearts, Q-J-3; Diamonds, K-J-8-2; Clubs, A-9-7-3.

The bidding has proceeded:

West North East South

1 Spd. Pass 1 N.T. Pass

2 Spds. Dbl. Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A—Pass. Had partner wanted you to bid, he would have doubled one spade. His double on the second round is obviously for penalties, and you have just the material to convert it into a handsome profit.

Q. 2—As South you hold:

Spades, 10-6-4-3; Hearts, A-Q-2; Diamonds, A-K-Q-10-9-3.

The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East

1 Dia. Pass 1 N.T. Pass

What do you bid now?

A—Three diamonds. A slightly aggressive call, but this hand figures to produce seven tricks and if partner has adequate protection in the black suits a game may be scored in no-trump. A bid of only two diamonds would be too conservative. Since partner failed to make a one-over-one response there is a good chance he has values in clubs.

Q. 3—As South you hold:

Spades, J-4; Hearts, A-Q-6-2; Diamonds, A-Q-10; Clubs, A-Q-J-10.

The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East

1 Clb. 1 Spd. Pass 2 Spds. Dbl. 3 Spds. Pass Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A—Pass, though somewhat reluctantly. It is distinctly disappointing to give up a hand worth 20 points, but facts must be faced and it is clear that partner has practically nothing, so that no action would be safe.

Q. 4—As South you hold:

Spades, A-10-3-2; Hearts, Q-10-8-6; Diamonds, 7; Clubs, 8-7-6-4.

The bidding has proceeded:

North East South West

1 Hrt. Pass 2 Hrts. Pass 2 N.T. Pass

What do you bid now?

A—Four hearts. You have a maximum raise, counting an additional point for the promoted heart honor. A game bid is clearly indicated, as partner is obviously showing additional values and testing the quality of your raise.

Q. 5—As South you hold:

Spades, 7-3-2; Hearts, A-4-2; Diamonds, K-8-7-3; Clubs, A-Q-9.

The bidding has proceeded:

West North East South

Pass 1 Hrt. Pass 2 Dia. Pass 2 Hrts. Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A—Three hearts is quite adequate. Your hand is not as good as the high cards would seem to indicate, due to the evenly balanced distribution. In fact, deducting a point for dummy's

Department Store Stock Is Going Up

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — The fight for control of the Meier & Frank Co. department stores boosted the common stock of that company up to $60 at one point Friday.

It was $38.50 a month ago. That was before the officials of the store split over the future of the company.

The action led by president Jack Meier wants to sell to the May Co. of St. Louis in a stock exchange deal. The faction claims 55 per cent of the Meier & Frank stock.

The rivals, led by Aaron Frank and his son Gerry, said they sold their stock to Broadway-Hale, Inc., of Los Angeles. They claim 22 per cent of the 919,640 shares of stock. Frank said Broadway-Hale paid $50 a share.

The Meier faction said its deal with May Co. was even more lucrative, but added that in order to make a tax-free merger the May Co. would have to acquire 66 2/3 per cent of the stock.

That's when spirited bidding began for the remainder of the stock.

Both May and Broadway-Hale have advertised in Portland newspapers for stock at prices up to $57. Broadway-Hale now is offering a tax-free stock exchange also.

An Internal Revenue Service official said it would not be until after any merger that the government would decide whether the stock exchange could be tax free.

The bidding for the stock got up to $60 on the Pacific Coast Stock Exchange at San Francisco Friday morning, then closed at $58. The exchange said 5,000 shares traded hands.

Meier & Frank operates three stores in Portland and Salem, Ore.

Where the Action Is

It is probably true that none of us knows as much as we like to think we do about ourselves. This is not truly surprising, but it is unfortunate. In this present decade, which displays so intensely our adolescence, and which uses so frequently the jargon of the teenager, we fondly like to think that we are "where the action is."

The individual, facing himself in the mirror, tends to identify himself with what he does, not with what he is. He is a clerk, or a salesman, or a vice president, or a teacher, or a violinist, a bricklayer, an editor, or a technician. He does not really see himself, he sees his principal occupation and superimposes the pattern of his daily actions upon himself.

Since, in the course of a day, he may play several roles — bookkeeper, father, husband, buyer, traffic manager, charming host or guest — what he really is gets buried deeper and deeper under the layers of patterns he superimposes on himself.

We are, nearly always, preoccupied with actions. We are concerned with our own actions; with the actions of others. If the things other people do displease us, we wish to take action to correct them. If the things other people do please us, then we wish to take action using them as our own models.

It may be this tendency which discourages so many young people from a serious pursuit of knowledge. We have heard it so frequently: "Why should I learn Latin or Greek? I'm not trying to be a scientist or a doctor. I just want to have a reasonably good job, with an adequate salary, so I can marry and have my own house and car and raise my own little family."

The emphasis is nearly always, not on being, but on doing. Yet man, more than he is as yet realizes, is a creature who acts on the surface and who lives at great depths, often far removed from action.

Consider your own case and what we could refer to as a "peak" experience. Some persons have many such experiences, some have only a few; but nearly everyone will grasp what is meant.

A "peak" experience is a moment of supreme satisfaction in which the individual seems in all respects to be right. He is in the right place at the right time doing the right thing. He is, one might suggest, in tune with the infinite. Let us suggest that, in every case, a "peak" experience is an act of knowing, not an act of doing. It is a supreme moment, wherein a whole series of apparently unrelated and heretofore puzzling phenomena suddenly fall into place and a total concept is unveiled. You KNOW. Doubt and confusion vanish. Your mind has drawn a line, added up the score, and you and that score are one.

Many people comment upon this phenomenon within a theological context. They say they have been "born again." They are "made whole." There is an assurance that comes. Suddenly, they are not isolated, alone, a fragment in a confusing, chaotic world. They belong. They are "at one" with creation. They absorb the whole at the same moment they are absorbed in the whole.

A similar moment of exhilaration comes to the person who, in study, finally grasps a generalization, or a concept. The pieces fit. What was unrelated is now seen to be related. It is as though everything clicks into place. The moment is transcendent.

Something quite akin is the experience of love; of loving someone or of being loved. In each and every peak experience, you KNOW.

Thus, the highest, most exciting, most exhilarating of all experiences man is capable of are moments of BEING, not moments of DOING. The mind encompasses the experience. It is what you know and are that matters. What you are doing is the froth; what you really are is the satisfying and the transcending reality.

In these moments, rare though they may be, you are not cloaked in patterns of behavior, you stand free. You see yourself for what you really are. You are YOU.

This is the real meaning of individuality, for only the individual is capable of peak experience. And herein lies the unfortunate character of so much of the educational conformity of our times. Groups never peak. The mass is always held down by its own dead weight and inertia.

The person capable of self-fulfillment is the freely creative individual who knows and understands, at least in part, the true meaning of human liberty. What you do is important, of course. But actions are the result of being; being is not the result of action. To grasp the meaning of being is to grasp, to some degree, the meaning of being free.

Getting Fouler?

We know a man by the name of Fowler who is complaining about the fact that the administration didn't get around to appointing a Fowler as Secretary of the Treasury until it was "all fouled up." "It's downright embarrassing," he says.

Spontaneous Protests?

We have been led to believe that all the demonstrations, sit-ins, marches and riots involving the "racial question" were spontaneous. Nothing much has been said in any of the news media about how these things have been organized and promoted, but they certainly have been, and in many cases the marchers, sit-inners and rioters are, and have been, paid "wages and expenses," including fines when imposed.

In the bickering among the marchers on Montgomery, Alabama, it came to light that hundreds of the marchers were drawing $12 to $14 per day and food. Naturally, they protested when out-of-staters hogged the show and some of them were "thrown out of work" when the number of marchers was limited by the width of the highway.

While we do not doubt the sincerity of those northerners, white or colored, who traveled far at their own expense to have a part in the mass demonstration, we do doubt their common sense. Having our own citizens involved in protest meetings or marches is somewhat different from having strangers coming in by the hundreds to take part in them and bringing dissension in their wake.

We deplore violence wherever it raises its ugly head, and we join with others in expressing sorrow and sympathy to the families of those who lost their lives because of the violence created largely by the federal government for its giving a "green light" for what were in Alabama unlawful actions.

We wondered why so many ministers of many denominations became involved in the racial strife. A few idealists were to be expected, but it seems there were droves of preachers among the marching hordes. It did seem that way until we received a clipping from the Amarillo, Texas, Globe Times, from which we printed a piece on the Selma affair on March 30 editorial page.

This other clipping is from a column entitled "From A to Z" which we will quote two paragraphs: "An Amarillo man received a letter yesterday from a friend in Montgomery, Alabama, an official of an organization of church laymen. The writer penned this P.S.:

"Pray for us. The next ten days will be the most dangerous. Those posing as clergy in rented uniforms are the epitome of anti-Christ! You should see some of them first hand."

So it turns out that the huge mass spontaneous demonstration was, to a great degree, phony, with hired marchers and hired preachers in rented "clothes."

It has also come out that many of the marchers of Washington last year were being paid. And the demonstration against the House Committee on Un-American Activities in San Francisco was pulled off mostly by hirelings — of whom?

Who is paying for all these riots, sit-ins and marches? Well, who is expecting to "divide and conquer" America?

Harder Than Walking in Space

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

The Soviets are moving heaven and earth to get their farm situation straightened out, which lends point to the supposition that the tenure of Brezhnev and Kossygin in the Kremlin will depend on the next Russian harvest.

Can this harvest possibly be rich enough to sustain the current Soviet leadership through some ticklish days? In calling a plenary meeting of the 330-member Central Committee of the Communist party, Brezhnev announced that the big topic for discussion would be "efforts designed to improve radically the situation in our agriculture." The key to the importance of this announcement is the use of the word "radically." It indicates that nothing has been going right with Russian farming for a long time.

The big flop of recent years will, of course, be blamed on Khrushchev. It was Khrushchev's long love affair with American corn that had changed the Ukraine, once famous for its wheat surplus, into a crop deficient area. In 1953 only five per cent of the Ukraine's arable soil had been devoted to American corn. Khrushchev, after his trip to Iowa, jumped this up to some twenty-two per cent. But what was right for farmer Garst, Khrushchev's friend in Iowa, proved wrong for the Ukraine, and it was even more disastrous for the "virgin lands" of Kazakhstan. Corn requires far more labor than wheat, and it needs corn-cultivating machinery that the Soviets did not have. Moreover, it needs a long growing season, and this cannot be had in Russia where the frosts come early.

The presence of unharvested corn in the fields last autumn kept Brezhnev and Kossygin from making the turn to winter wheat in time to guarantee a quick "restoration of the past glory of the Ukraine as a rich wheat-growing region." The big gamble is that later plantings of wheat, oats, barley, buckwheat and millet will be sufficient to refill the depleted Russian granary.

To retrieve the situation, Brezhnev and Kossygin have restored a Ukrainian, V. V. Matskevich, to his old job as minister of Soviet agriculture. Matskevich had been fired in 1960 by Khrushchev after six years in office. His record had been good for the 1955-58 period, but after that nothing seemed to work. Khrushchev sent Matskevich to Kazakhstan, where as an exile he presided over one good harvest, two so-so years, and one complete disaster. But Matskevich's successors at the USSR Ministry of Agriculture had only made matters worse trying to implement what have been called Khrushchev's "hare-brained schemes." The really fundamental question is whether anyone can make a collective farm system produce, even when the right sort of crops are planted at the right time. This is the dilemma that confronts the Brezhnev-Kossygin leadership, and its resolution could depend on the Kremlin's willingness to let the individual Russian peasant have his own way about the control of his own private plot and his own animals.

The Radio Free Europe agricultural specialists point out that Matskevich, a Ukrainian, is the choice of "the influential Ukrainian group within the presidium of the Central Committee — Podgorny, Brezhnev, Polansky, Shelest, Kirilenko."

This would indicate that the Ukrainians have won out in a struggle with the Muscovites, or great Russians, inside the Central Committee. But the victory has its own built-in dangers, for if Matskevich does not turn out to be a miracle man the Ukrainian group may find itself stuck with its own version of "hare-brained schemes."

Matskevich and the Ukrainians are setting out on the miracle-working path from behind the biggest eighthall imaginable. The Soviets have already had to buy 17 million tons of western wheat since the 1964 harvest. There hasn't been enough grain fodder for livestock, and in places the milk yield in the Soviet Union has been approximately one-third lower than in previous years. Meatless days have been many, flour has been rationed even for holidays, and there is a great need for investments in agricultural machinery, chemicals, irrigation, farm-to-market roads, and rural housing. Finally, there is the peasant slow-down, which will continue until something has been done to restore incentive to the individual farmer.

So look for the Soviet crisis to come to a head next August. The miracle that Brezhnev and Kossygin must produce makes floating in space seem like child's play by comparison.

ELECTION

To the Editor:

Well we'll hear a lot about electing our councilmen these days and it confuses us some to a certain extent. But when everything is all considered it doesn't take me long to decide who I want to represent me on the city council. Do you want members of the council back that tried to put a sales tax on us that would put the tax on the man on the lower rungs of the tax ladder, which would include the old age pensioner and lower income groups that would have to rob his family to pay it and relieve the railroads, the bus companies and the large trucking companies and put it on the lower income groups, and not him but the man half way up on the tax ladder by relieving him of $1.00 on his property tax and pulling $5.00 on a sales tax? Do you want such men as that back on the city council and not a single one has ever said a word why they voted for it? Do you want such men as that on the city council? This will be for you to decide on election day.

NIGHTMARE

To the Editor:

As violence and crime continue to become a living nightmare, it behooves us to come to grips with the truth and reality in this current problem which is bound to become more prevalent before it is controlled by the individual.

A friend told of a friend of his who was knocked down on the sidewalk and her purse was stolen by 2 youngsters — and was naturally decrying such violence and crime in young people — to say the least, it is inexcusable.

When any facet of education whether it be the parents, churches, nurseries, kindergarten, elementary, secondary or business schools, colleges and universities, unions or businesses, clubs or organizations and all facets of the entertainment world fail to teach right from wrong and fail by living example to lift everyone's goals to a better life — violence and crime will prevail.

As we endeavor to make the change from fantasy to reality I recommend that these youngsters be allowed to seek jobs in the business world at any area that business might hire them — for a number of reasons: 1) To hold a job one must be responsible — there's nothing that propagates responsibility like the thrill of your hard earned paycheck and the innate pleasure of feeling your own worth.

2) When man's time is occupied constructively there's little time to be destructive — under these conditions there can be less crime. 3) By economic endeavor through businesses, at a young and tender age — not only will subsequent education be put to work but youthful ingenuity will be awakened, creating new inventions and new businesses and more jobs. (Reckon this could help the liberal thinkers? national gross product without more government spending which in turn would help all taxpayers retain some money).

There's much talk of growth of big government and big business — anti-trust laws were to contain big business and the Constitution of the United States was to contain big government — neither has worked as a control. It is to the peoples benefit to not contain big business as big business produces more for the people at less cost. It is to the people's benefit to do away with big government as big government costs them too much of their hard earned dough and produces nothing but restraints that hinder peoples' lives and endeavors.

In order to better make businesses competitive, the business man's opportunity to hire youngsters at lower wages and using them as business learners and apprentices, will make more businesses grow more rapidly, producing more goods at lower costs and more jobs as the volume of business grows. Once a business has become successful (a going concern) and has grown, there's plenty of time for unions to endeavor to unionize them. SINCE UNIONS ARE an innate part of our PRESENT NATIONAL GOVERNMENT they should be as content as our federal government is — because even big government does not receive more taxes until small and big businesses show a larger profit! With all our liberal thinkers hot on the trail of gross national product, they should be interested as our present policy will reach nothing but chaos. (One can measure loss of freedom by how much of the peoples' earnings go to pay taxes — and the degree of violence and crime is the degree of irresponsibility of the people and government interference in the affairs of men).

Unions as well as others will raise a great hue and cry; but they have been crying since the Industrial Revolution and now it is automation that bodes such great perils to those who work? To date, both evils have given us the greatest standard of living and higher wages than any other people. So unions should be careful as through force and coercion they are beginning to shut their water off — it is time to wake up and defeat their enemy as well as themselves (only nothing down and small payments per month is keeping the unions in the saddle now, that and government interference in the affairs of men).

It has been my experience that the hazards of retirement by those who depend more or less on social security and pensions which restrict earnings of those from 62 years to 72 years makes it so that a man cannot afford to retire. Here's another source of manpower for businesses who must create goods, who must sell, who must create jobs in order for people to live and pay taxes. Presently, businesses can't hire them for $100.00 per month as laws restrict hourly wages and hours to where a business can't hire men who could aid them in such a growth which would eventually hire more workers who would pay more taxes and add to the gross national product, not to mention the happiness to be had by older workers who are useful as well as to relieve welfare spending which can only be paid now by a tightly restricted earning power force. (This earning power is becoming more and more restricted.)

Here again unions and others will howl; but there is job after job going begging in our country because government restricts men from working for less. Consequently business which would perpetuate new goods and services never get started. As I said before, the unions and big government are running out of potential — and unless the powers-that-be come to grips with truth and reality, they will live under complete dictatorship. It seems to me that an effort to come to grips with reality and truth is much wiser than coming to a death grip with our enemies.

I pray that the communistic leader who said, "we'll take you over without firing a shot" — will be one of history's greatest flops as a prophet!

JOHNSON SINCERE?

President Johnson made a very humanitarian talk in his inauguration speech. I think he is sincere and means well. He is human and subject to mistakes. He needs God's guidance to help him steer the ship of state. In union there is strength. If he seeks God's directions and the Christians join in union in praying God's guidance, this can become a greater nation.

President Johnson expressed the teaching of the scripture in saying, "The judgment of God is harshest on those for the sin of omission who are most favored."

President Johnson made one statement that is off base if I understand him correctly. And that was that we will bend the world to the hopes of men. That will mean disaster because collectively their hopes are not in God. What this nation needs to do is follow the pattern and build on the foundation laid by our forefathers under God's direction instead of trying to bend the world to the hopes of the distorted ideas of this generation. The masses will have to put their faith and trust in God in order to go forward and be a progressive, prosperous, and peaceful nation.

Robert W. Goldwater is even writing in trying to drum up attendance at the party dinner in Phoenix April 14 that is billed as "a tribute to Barry."

"The money we will raise from this dinner is going into a fund which will be administered by Barry to further the aims of those who believe in our form of government," wrote Robert W. Goldwater.

"I know that you did more than your share in the support of the conservative cause during the last election, but that you, too, might want to be part of this tribute."

Just how this fund would be administered by the 1964 Republican presidential candidate apparently is a mystery to two Republicans Robert Goldwater said would be honored guests at the dinner, National Chairman Ray Bliss and former Vice President Richard M. Nixon.

Ordinarily the National Committee gets a portion of the receipts when a state party organization puts on a fund-raising dinner in the $100-a-plate bracket. In this case Barry Goldwater evidently will decide whether to deposit any of the money in the national party treasury.

Bliss has made it clear that so far as he can shape party policies they will be directed at trying to reclaim the support of Negroes and other minority groups which went overwhelmingly against Goldwater in last year's presidential contest.

Nixon, at the Republican women's conference here, called for prompt enactment of legislation to end voting discrimination against Negroes in the South.

But Goldwater said there is enough legislation on the books "to demand and obtain the right to vote for every qualified citizen in every state of this union." He said there is no need for the voting-rights bill President

United Air Lines was a fractional gainer.

Tornadoes Swirl Through Texas And Oklahoma

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Tornadoes swirled through Oklahoma and Texas late Sunday while snow and heavy rains lashed wide stretches along the eastern edge of the Rocky Mountains.

The twisters inflicted little damage and no injuries were reported.

Tornadoes and funnel clouds were sighted in the countryside around Ponca City in north central Oklahoma and southwest of San Angelo, Tex. High winds, heavy rain and hail swept through much of northern Oklahoma and parts of southern Kansas.

Rain, snow and fog blanketed parts of Colorado and southern Wyoming, causing abrupt drops in temperatures. Livestock warnings were posted in South Dakota and north central Nebraska, where rain is expected to change to snow. Cheyenne, Wyo., accumulated two inches of snow in six hours late Sunday night.

In Arizona, clear skies were predicted after a weekend of heavy snows, including 15 inches at Flagstaff.

Continental Has Greatest Year in '64

"Nineteen sixty-four was Continental Airlines' greatest year of achievement," President Robert F. Six told stockholders in the company's annual report issued recently.

Compared with 1963, Six said revenues rose 12 per cent to $88,047,000, operating income climbed 76 per cent to $13,652,000 and net income from operations increased 135 per cent to $5,689,000, or $1.82 per common share.

In 1964, Six said Continental became a stronger, more diversified corporation with a broader base from which to grow in the future. He predicted that the company would achieve new highs in both revenues and net profits in 1965.

Despite the improvement in the company's profits, Six said Continental's average rate of return for the 1959-64 period was only 6.8 per cent compared to the Civil Aeronautics Board standard of 11.25 per cent.

In 1964, operating expenses rose 6 per cent to $74,995,000, or just half the rate of the revenue increase. Six said, Continental's cost per available ton mile dropped 14 per cent to 18.8 cents while the company's breakeven passenger load factor was reduced 10 per cent to 40.8 per cent.

Continental plans to continue its conservative policy of depreciating jet aircraft over 10 years and amortizing investment credits over the life of the equipment, Six said. At the end of 1964, Continental had a total of $1,281,000 of investment credits to take as income in future years, as well as $2,094,000 of additional investment credits available to reduce income taxes in the future.

Continental will take delivery on its third and fourth International Golden Jet Boeing 720Bs in June, 1965. One of the new aircraft already is fully booked with charters from California to Europe and Asia during the summer months, he said, while the other will permit expansion of domestic scheduled services.

Continental will receive its seventh and eighth Boeing 720Bs in March, 1966, to bring its fleet of four-engine Golden Jets up to 16. The company also will begin taking delivery on 12 Douglas DC-9C convertible passenger-cargo, twin-jet aircraft next year. Another six DC-9Cs are on option.

Santa Fe Declares Quarterly Dividend

The Board of Directors of the Santa Fe Railway has today declared a quarterly dividend of forty cents (.40) per share, being Dividend No. 220 on the common capital stock of the company.

The dividend will be payable June 1, 1965, to stockholders of record at close of business April 30, 1965.

The Springs Bride Service, 202 N. Weber St., is now open for business under the supervision and ownership of Annabelle M. Prizer (Mrs. William L.).

H & S Ad Agency Named Representative

The appointment of Hill & Sobel as the advertising and public relations agency for The Woodmoor Corporation was announced by Steven N. Arnold, president of Woodmoor.

Hill & Sobel initiated the Woodmoor promotional program as of last November.

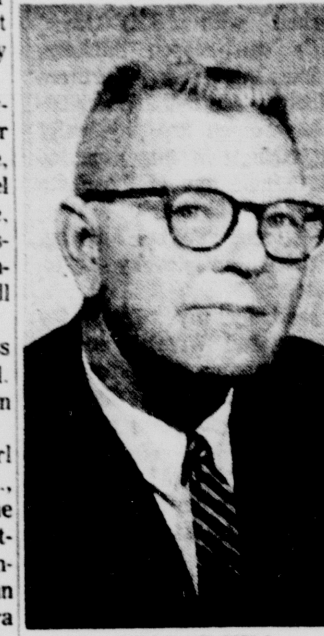

Woodmoor, located east of Monument — between Colorado Springs and Denver — is a "complete community" covering 2,000 acres. The community includes one acre and one-half acre homesites, the Woodmoor Country Club — an 18 hole championship golf course, riding stables, and a 42 acre lake. A two million dollar Woodmoor Shopping Center is planned for the very near future.

Hill & Sobel, with offices at 1723 East 16th Ave., is one of Denver's newer agencies, and offers full advertising and public relations services to its clients. Principles in the firm are George Hill and Sandi Sobel.

Miss Sobel received most of her promotional background in San Francisco, where she was an account executive with the Bernard B. Schnitzer Advertising Agency — and handled a variety of accounts ranging from George Hill, who is a retired Air Force Officer, has been active in the advertising and public relations field in the Rocky Mountain area for the past two years, as a member of Wolff Associates.

In 1954, Hill was assistant information director of the Air Force Academy and in 1959 director of public relations for

STILL LUMBERING ALONG — The Newton Lumber and Mfg. Co., at 24 W. Vermijo St., is now in its 93d year of business in Colorado Springs. Founded by George Newton in 1872, Newton Lumber has made it through the great Colorado Springs fire, the Cripple Creek gold strike and Colorado Springs' latest building boom, with scarcely a scratch. Of course, the company had to start all over again after the fire of 1898.

HIGH FACES

ASTATULA, Fla. (AP) — The totem pole which stands in a mobile home yard here is the product of the skill and imagination of owner Charlie Bournique. The 10-foot conversation piece is made from a cabbage palm log. It features two sets of three faces. One set watches the canal and boat entrance of the yard, the other looks toward the home and street side.

WORRY CLINIC

By George W. Crane, M.D., Ph.D.

Clarence can't understand why girls routinely will ask to be introduced to a man who has a good sense of humor. Tens of thousands of cultured women apply to our Scientific Marriage Foundation but rarely do they ask about money matters. Instead, they want a mate who is kind, considerate, likes children and "has a good sense of humor!"

CASE V-455: Clarence G., aged 28, is an engineer who registered with our Scientific Marriage Foundation.

"Dr. Crane," he began, "I'd like to get married. For I make a good salary."

"But I travel around a great deal so I don't have much chance to meet attractive women of the sort I'd want for a wife."

"So I am registering with the S-M-F and hope you can introduce me to a girl around 25 years of age who is congenial."

"But what do the women registrants say they like most in a prospective husband?"

Well, they routinely ask for a man who is "kindly, affectionate, and fond of children."

In addition, they very often add this interesting footnote: "And he must have a good sense of humor!"

"Dr. Crane," Clarence protested, "I don't see why they stress a sense of humor."

"If a man brings home a good pay check regularly, what difference does it make if he lacks a sense of humor?"

Well, what these women apparently mean is not necessarily a jokester or Bob Hope type of constant reciter of wisecracks.

Instead, they want a man who has a broad perspective so that he doesn't make mountains out of molehills.

They prefer a husband who is not such a slave to rules and ritual that he throws a fit if any slight annoyance interrupts his smooth routine.

In other words, they want a man who can shrug off occasional rebuffs to his plans and still not grouse or gripe all day about the matter.

By their "sense of humor," as I have learned through questioning any of these prospective wives, they refer to a jolly personality who can laugh at himself occasionally.

By contrast, notice this frequent remark from girls: "Oh, Henry is too stuffy! He takes the world too seriously, so he sees no fun in doing silly things once in awhile!"

If you men wish to rate higher as good husbands, please remember that women are more like children in their emotional outlook than are you grown males.

Both children as well as grown women, thus are delighted by surprises, even if the cost thereof is not more than a dime.

They are easily sidetracked by trivial things which the average man would brush aside as totally irrelevant and unimportant.

That's why they like to save dance programs and souvenirs of places they have visited, for such tangibles let them dream later on about their former gay trips or good times.

Remember, women are more concerned with THINGS.

That's one reason bankers, mechanics, engineers, farmers and doctors are usually masculine, for women are physically strong enough in this machine age to handle any of those duties.

But women prefer nursing, Red Cross, missionary societies, etc.

So send for my "Tests for Husbands and Wives," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 20 cents and go through those 200-point specific ratings.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 20 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Five Counties to Have Mountain Time

GOODLAND, Kan. (AP) — Five counties in Western Kansas and at least one in southwestern Nebraska will have mountain Standard Time all to themselves this summer if Colorado Gov. John A. Love signs into law a bill proposing daylight savings time for his state. The measure would put Colorado on the same time as Chicago—Central Standard—from April 25 to Oct. 31.

Sherman, Wallace, Greeley, Kersey and Hamilton counties in Kansas and Dundy County in Nebraska would remain an hour behind time in zones east and west of them.

Fiery Cross Found In Cincinnati Area

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — A fiery cross was found Sunday on the lawn at the home of a Negro family living in a previously all-white neighborhood in suburban Oakley.

Neighbors said they were stunned at the appearance of the cross, symbol of the Ku Klux Klan.

"We don't intend to sell or leave the neighborhood," Ira Roberts, 32, a shipping clerk said. "We have had no threats and have not been intimidated either in person, by telephone or mail since we bought the home."

Roberts and his family moved to the home a week ago from another Cincinnati suburb.

Audubon Lecture Gives Message Of Conservation

By JOHN FETLER
ARTS CRITIC

The season of wildlife film-lectures was brought to a close last Friday night, when Eben McMillan, presented "Land That I Love," at the Fine Arts Center. It was sponsored by the Aiken Ornithological Society and the National Audubon Society, and the auditorium was filled to capacity, as usual for these events, which made us reflect once more what an important cultural facet it is, to show interest and encourage the interest in wildlife, natural resources and conservation.

During the intermission, an appeal was made to the audience to take a hand in attempts to try to prevent further commercial erosion of the Front Range of the mountains at Colorado Springs.

McMillan proved to be a speaker of energy and enthusiasm, and the photography had some beautiful shots of nature and wildlife. The message, of course, is the necessity to practice conservation, to preserve natural resources and what remains of natural wildlife and scenery.

The National Audubon Society, for which McMillan spoke, has of course the policy to appeal to American public. Not only were we reminded of the Front Range in our own "back yard," but also about the current controversy which is raging in regard to the Grand Canyon.

One thing which certainly is true is that the film-lectures, approved by the National Audubon Society, are first-rate, some of the finest nature films shown by McMillan can easily be placed in the same category. More than that, his talk is down to earth, in a language which everybody can understand, and the film itself more than a graphic — a beautiful and at times stark reminder of the natural heritage of America, and of the dangers which it faces.

Seat Belt Drive Launched At Ft. Carson

Every car owner at Ft. Carson will be encouraged to install seat belts into his car during May, with the command cooperating to the fullest to make this important safety precaution as easy and as inexpensive as possible.

Lt. Col. Harold D. Pinney, G1, said the seat belts would be placed on sale at paylines April 30.

Recent figures compiled at Ft. Campbell, Ky., show a 23 per cent reduction in injuries and a 41 per cent decline in fatalities after 99 per cent of the 7,300 soldier-owned vehicles had been equipped with seat belts. This happened while fatality rates increased in the neighboring states of Tennessee and Kentucky.

Department of Defense is encouraging the installation of seat belts in all privately-owned cars.

As part of the seat-belt encouragement at Fort Carson, the National Safety Council film, Broken Glass, will be shown to troops on post.

Springs Youth on NMML Dean's List

Cadet Walter R. Hieronymus, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Hieronymus of 807 Hercules Place, has been placed on the Dean's List at New Mexico Military Institute in Roswell, N.M.

Cadet Hieronymus is a fourth classman (high school junior) at the Institute, and has studied there since fall 1963.

To earn Dean's List recognition, a student must have an academic grade point of 3.0 or better on a grade score of 4.0.

Cadet Hieronymus was awarded the Dean's List star to be worn on his uniform, and was given privileges accompanying the honor at the Institute.

AFA Instructor Is Third in Contest

Maj. John P. Portasik, Air Force Academy Department of Mathematics instructor, is the winner of third place in a command-wide suggestion contest.

The major received a $200 check from the Air Force Logistics Command for suggestions submitted while he was assigned to the Flight Instruments Branch of the Aeronautical Systems Division, Hq. AFM, Wright-Patterson AFB, Ohio.

GAZETTE-TELEGRAPH

COLORADO SPRINGS—MONDAY, APRIL 5, 1965 SECTION B

In the  seven minutes it takes to read this article, cancer will profoundly affect twelve Americans.

 six will be told they have cancer.

 two will have survived the disease for five years, perhaps cured.

Four will have died

Of these four, perhaps  two could have been saved by good medical practices.

Cancer's 'Savage Cell'

Editor's Note: The war on cancer—and what you yourself can do about it—are the subjects of the articles in this series condensed from the widely acclaimed but controversial new book, "The Savage Cell." The author has studied the matter first hand for 17 years as science editor of the American Cancer Society and here presents the facts and his personal views.

By PAT McGRADY

In the seven minutes it takes to read this article, cancer will profoundly affect 12 Americans:

Four will have died;

Six will be told they have cancer;

Two will have survived the disease for five years — possibly cured.

Of the four who will have died of cancer, perhaps two could have been cured by good medical practices. They delayed too long in taking their symptoms to the doctor—or they went to the wrong doctor.

Cancer—any kind of cancer—requires the best that medicine has to offer. It calls for help from a team of specialists, composed basically of a pathologist, a surgeon, a radiologist and an internist or family-type doctor, each skilled in the management of cancer and all working closely together.

Ideally, one's own doctor should arrange for experts to diagnose and treat the case without delay.

The average doctor—even the average good doctor—usually is not the man to diagnose and treat cancer. He can cure some cancers. But he also may sacrifice more lives to the disease than he saves; he does this inadvertently by deadly delays in diagnosis ("come back in three months and we'll see what happens"), by treating the wrong disease or by inadequate treatment for the right disease.

In contrast, there exist in the United States research and treatment centers which are the best—or among the best—in the world.

For 17 years, this writer has had the enormous privilege of knowing many of the brilliant scientists and great physicians of our time and reporting their triumphs.

This has been a period of sharp contrasts—of fantastic progress in understanding life and of abysmal failure to protest life, of heroic medical achievements amid the decay of medicine generally, of the rise of geniuses and, too often, their suffocation in stagnant systems.

Cancer research is not entirely a matter of manpower, money and machines. Only in part is it an adventure in discovery. Ultimately, it becomes a problem of transferring to sick humans the benefits derived from test tube and animal experiments.

Cancer may well have been here a desperate defense of the free and enquiring mind against the tyranny of professional conformity, mediocrity, materialism, mechanization and venality.

WHY SO SLOW?

Only by appreciating the human weaknesses governing research and medicine can we hope to understand why cancer control is slow in coming. The means for the conquest of cancer, a disease of civilization, can be lost in the ocean of words which comprise scientific and medical literature, or bogged down in the very institutions which were created to bring it forth.

Has cancer's cold, hard grip on human destiny begun to relax? Perhaps—a little. More than one million cured cancer patients in the United States alone can attest to this.

What's more, the number and percentage of cures are rising slowly but steadily. Most of the fortunate former patients, to be sure, had cancers which were accessible, readily diagnosed, and responsive to surgery or X-rays.

While almost all incurable cancers remain incurable still, ease and comfort have been given to most of these patients, and their useful lives have been lengthened, often without great pain. To those who have learned to live each day for itself these small advances are a blessing.

New concepts of cancer and its treatment are emerging. It seems inevitable that some of these results someday will be applied clinically to prolong human life, relieve man of his pains and terrors, and enrich him with health and new degrees of productivity.

Judge Hinton Grants Nine Divorces Here

Nine divorces have been granted in district court since March 19.

Judge Patrick M. Hinton gave the following Susan S. Sanchez from Albert Sanchez March 19; Letha P. Destefan and Michael J. Destefan, granted to both parties, March 22; Esther E. Wallace from W. R. Wallace, March 23; Raymond W. Burke from Ena Burke, March 24; and James R. Wheeler from Carolyn S. Wheeler, March 26.

The following were granted by Judge John Gallagher: Gabriel W. Brock from Margaret Margo Brock, March 25; Robert Bruce Price from Dottie Deleone Price, Phyllis J. Schupp from James P. Schupp, and Renate Thompson from David L. Thompson, all March 26.

A RISING CURVE OF CURES

In this respect, cancer scholars are like the legendary blind men who sought to describe an elephant. All of them could be right.

But let us define cancer as a savage cell which somehow evades the laws of the body, corrupts the forces which normally protect, invades the well-ordered society of cells surrounding it, colonizes distant areas and, as a finale to its cannibalistic orgy of flesh consuming flesh, commits suicide by destroying its host.

Just as a city can be paralyzed by the breakdown of any of its essential functions, so can the body become sick or die when cancer impairs an important system or service.

Scientists have induced cancer in animals by many means—by mating, by infection, by radiation, by treatment or feeding with hundreds of chemicals, hormones and poisons. If normal cells are removed from the body and grown in tissue culture, one in every several thousand will develop into cancer when injected into an animal.

Has cancer's cold, hard grip on human destiny begun to relax? Perhaps—a little. More than one million cured cancer patients in the United States alone can attest to this.

What's more, the number and percentage of cures are rising slowly but steadily. Most of the fortunate former patients, to be sure, had cancers which were accessible, readily diagnosed, and responsive to surgery or X-rays.

Boys' Club Member Thinks It's 'Pretty Cool Place'

By ED COOK

Gazette Telegraph Staff Writer

Boys' Club of Colorado Springs is a "pretty cool place," members generally agree.

Today marks the observance of National Boys' Club Week, scheduled through Saturday.

Sharing the spotlight will be the local 300-member organization, founded to guide the less-privileged youth in the city.

In continual operation since 1896, the club serves to build the social, educational, vocational and character of youth between the ages of eight and 20.

"He's an all-American boy, but he doesn't have the advantage other boys have," Director Tom P. Hoe said.

The club is a guidance tool and channels programs to meet the needs of today's lower income youth.

Facilities at 605 S. Tejon St. include a handicraft shop where plastics, ceramics, leather, metal and other work projects are turned out, and a lapidary section for cutting and polishing stones, library, game rooms, a model train room, printing and photography shops and a gymnasium.

Boys' Club also publishes a monthly "Junior Board Press" newspaper in its off-set printing shop. All club printing matter is handled by the organization.

Hoe, a proponent of guiding youth to better social paths, said the club is open to any boy and it's usually by choice that a boy becomes a member.

"A boy comes to a boys' club because he wants to come. The door is always open," he said.

Dues are 25 cents for boys 8-12 years old; 500 cents for boys 12 to 16 and $1 for youth between 16 and 20 years old.

The club was organized by a group of Episcopal women known as the Kings' Daughters and strong interest in its development was shown by Mrs. Spencer Penrose, E. Cass Goddard, William Jackson Palmer and other early day residents of the region.

Assisted by two full-time staff members, seven part-time workers and three volunteers, the club's membership averages about 500 annually.

"We'd like to handle 1,500 to 2,000 boys. That's about the number that needs to be taken care of," Hoe said.

Hoe said the club can handle about 120 boys per hour, but anything over that figure might lead to "bedlam." Close to 100 youths attend night activities; 40 to 60 take part in functions during the afternoon and 140-150 attend the club during the day.

"We've got ample activities for the kids, but when you get over a certain limit your taxing the place," Hoe said.

But, he pointed out, the club would have 1,500 boys as members if they could arrange transportation.

The gymnasium is the most popular activity center. Members of the club will give gymnastic exhibitions April 30 and May 1.

The program during National Boys' Club Week includes an open house Monday, service club night Tuesday, parents' night Wednesday, basketball awards Thursday and alumni night Friday.

Summer camp, scheduled through the month of June and half of July, is a popular yearly event. Hoe said 178 youths took part in camp activities last year and about the same number are expected this season.

The six-week sessions are staffed by a director and his assistant, two counselors, cabin leaders, cook and assistant. Activities include hiking, exploring, archery, rifle firing, nature lore, conservation, handicraft and woodcraft. The campsite is 13 miles up the old Stage Road in a heavily wooded section.

Camp is scheduled during the weeks of June 15, June 22, June 29, July 6 and July 13. Reservations are now open. Cost for Boys' Club members is $6 per week. It is $16 per week for non-members.

The club is part of the southwest region which comprises Colorado, New Mexico, Texas, Louisiana, Arkansas and Oklahoma.

Motto of the organization is "Fun With a Purpose" for youth in the Colorado Springs society "no one else will take care of."

If Fisher keeps selecting as good travelogues for the next season as he has for the one just done, the audiences for Horizons Unlimited should show a further increase. Apart from going to all the corners of the world oneself, these travelogues provide excellent entertainment and information for armchair travelers—and in color, too.

Also, in regard to speakers, the series has been quite fortunate, for all of them proved to be entertaining and quite competent. The appearance of Miss Dix was especially so (despite some dark scenes, perhaps the problem of the projector) as a number of people became so interested that they wished to meet her personally.

One of the most entertaining of travelogues was presented Sunday by Marion Dix, who lectured on the Philippines at the Fine Arts Center, for Theodore Fisher's Horizons Unlimited series. She will repeat the lecture tonight, and it is well worth seeing and hearing.

Miss Dix is a very competent lecturer, and her film on the Philippines has the added virtue of having numerous scenes in color, well-filmed, and well-lighted for the most part, including shots of the Igorot head-hunters.

Perhaps the best virtue is that her film does not waste time with useless footage, as sometimes occurs in travelogues. The scenes are short, crisp and to the point. The film is really quite a remarkable kaleidoscope of the Filipino islands and the Filipino way of life, so that one invariably wishes to take a trip to those islands.

It is, of course, a world still quite removed from the modern American, although Manila is a fairly modern city; but a few miles into the country, or to other islands of the archipelago, still brings one to the Filipino villages, to the peasants, to the fields and water buffalo, and to many other scenes of the lush, lush green land, and its mountains, lakes, rivers and the surrounding sea.

Also, in regard to speakers, the series has been quite fortunate, for all of them proved to be entertaining and quite competent. The appearance of Miss Dix was especially so (despite some dark scenes, perhaps the problem of the projector) as a number of people became so interested that they wished to meet her personally.

plastics, ceramics, leather, metal and other work projects are turned out, and a lapidary section for cutting and polishing stones, library, game rooms, a model train room, printing and photography shops and a gymnasium.

Boys' Club also publishes a monthly "Junior Board Press" newspaper in its off-set printing shop. All club printing matter is handled by the organization.

Hoe, a proponent of guiding youth to better social paths, said the club is open to any boy and it's usually by choice that a boy becomes a member.

"A boy comes to a boys' club because he wants to come. The door is always open," he said.

Dues are 25 cents for boys 8-12 years old; 500 cents for boys 12 to 16 and $1 for youth between 16 and 20 years old.

The club was organized by a group of Episcopal women known as the Kings' Daughters and strong interest in its development was shown by Mrs. Spencer Penrose, E. Cass Goddard, William Jackson Palmer and other early day residents of the region.

Assisted by two full-time staff members, seven part-time workers and three volunteers, the club's membership averages about 500 annually.

"We'd like to handle 1,500 to 2,000 boys. That's about the number that needs to be taken care of," Hoe said.

Hoe said the club can handle about 120 boys per hour, but anything over that figure might lead to "bedlam." Close to 100 youths attend night activities; 40 to 60 take part in functions during the afternoon and 140-150 attend the club during the day.

"We've got ample activities for the kids, but when you get over a certain limit your taxing the place," Hoe said.

But, he pointed out, the club would have 1,500 boys as members if they could arrange transportation.

The gymnasium is the most popular activity center. Members of the club will give gymnastic exhibitions April 30 and May 1.

The program during National Boys' Club Week includes an open house Monday, service club night Tuesday, parents' night Wednesday, basketball awards Thursday and alumni night Friday.

Summer camp, scheduled through the month of June and half of July, is a popular yearly event. Hoe said 178 youths took part in camp activities last year and about the same number are expected this season.

The six-week sessions are staffed by a director and his assistant, two counselors, cabin leaders, cook and assistant. Activities include hiking, exploring, archery, rifle firing, nature lore, conservation, handicraft and woodcraft. The campsite is 13 miles up the old Stage Road in a heavily wooded section.

Camp is scheduled during the weeks of June 15, June 22, June 29, July 6 and July 13. Reservations are now open. Cost for Boys' Club members is $6 per week. It is $16 per week for non-members.

The club is part of the southwest region which comprises Colorado, New Mexico, Texas, Louisiana, Arkansas and Oklahoma.

Motto of the organization is "Fun With a Purpose" for youth in the Colorado Springs society "no one else will take care of."

If Fisher keeps selecting as good travelogues for the next season as he has for the one just done, the audiences for Horizons Unlimited should show a further increase. Apart from going to all the corners of the world oneself, these travelogues provide excellent entertainment and information for armchair travelers—and in color, too.

Also, in regard to speakers, the series has been quite fortunate, for all of them proved to be entertaining and quite competent. The appearance of Miss Dix was especially so (despite some dark scenes, perhaps the problem of the projector) as a number of people became so interested that they wished to meet her personally.

One of the most entertaining of travelogues was presented Sunday by Marion Dix, who lectured on the Philippines at the Fine Arts Center, for Theodore Fisher's Horizons Unlimited series. She will repeat the lecture tonight, and it is well worth seeing and hearing.

Miss Dix is a very competent lecturer, and her film on the Philippines has the added virtue of having numerous scenes in color, well-filmed, and well-lighted for the most part, including shots of the Igorot head-hunters.

Perhaps the best virtue is that her film does not waste time with useless footage, as sometimes occurs in travelogues. The scenes are short, crisp and to the point. The film is really quite a remarkable kaleidoscope of the Filipino islands and the Filipino way of life, so that one invariably wishes to take a trip to those islands.

It is, of course, a world still quite removed from the modern American, although Manila is a fairly modern city; but a few miles into the country, or to other islands of the archipelago, still brings one to the Filipino villages, to the peasants, to the fields and water buffalo, and to many other scenes of the lush, lush green land, and its mountains, lakes, rivers and the surrounding sea.

replica of the larger one and will be sent to Fuyi-Yoshida, Japan, the Sister City of Colorado Springs. Hoth said that in the near future color replicas of the city flag would be sent to every school in the city as the start of a program to make citizens aware that Colorado Springs does have its own flag.

Replicas of Official City Flag To Be Distributed to Schools Here

Not many people in the Pikes Peak region know that the city of Colorado Springs has an official flag.

But it does have, and a very symbolic one at that.

The flag was designed and made official more than a half a century ago and remains as much a part of the city's official regalia as the great seal itself.

Because the flag has remained more or less in obscurity for all these years, Mayor Harry Hoth said he believes there should be a public awareness that the city does have a flag and what it stands for.

The first step in achieving such a goal, he said, will be to present each school in Colorado Springs a color replica of the flag along with a short documentary of its significance. These color replicas are in the process of being made.

Plan for the flag was submitted to the Colorado Springs City Council back in the summer of 1912 by Dr. Caroline Spencer, on behalf of the Civic League.

Records show that council was impressed with the flag but it was felt that the monogram "CS" should be worked in somewhere. The Civic League opposed the monogram suggestion. The result was the flag was adopted unanimously by resolution and without the monogram.

Those responsible for adoption of the flag were Mayor H. F. Avery and Councilmen E. C. F. Whitaker, E. W. Frost, John Himebaugh and A. J. Lawton.

The flag has a wide blue border surrounding a white field. In this white field is a green bordered hexagonal shield adorned with the golden rays of a sun and a blue peak on which three golden ingots are superimposed.

Both the design and the colors had significance, and still do, Hoth feels. The legend contained in the official council resolution adopted nearly 53 years ago read as follows:

"The white field is intended to represent the cleanliness and health of the city, and the blue border our blue skies; the shield carries the sun, of which we are justly proud; the mountain stands for Pikes Peak, and on it are pictured the gold ingots of our mining industries; the green band about the shield represents the park system surrounding the city."

A big flag was made at that time, and it now is located in the mayor's office in City Hall. As far as is known, it appeared on the City Hall flagpole only once; oldtimers recall that it caused such curiosity and consternation that the experiment was never repeated.

But the mayor feels the flag is something the city should be proud of, especially from the standpoint of historical significance and the legend. In fact, a small replica of the big flag has been made and will go later this year to Fuyi-Yoshida, Japan, the Sister City of Colorado Springs.

But the legend in the official resolution has as much significance as it did more than a half a century ago, Hoth feels.

The gold ingots representing the mining industries reflect the colorful history of the Cripple Creek district, which reached the height of its boom in 1900 but was still prolific in output in 1913.

The heritage and growth of Colorado Springs is linked historically with the twin gold camps of Victor and Cripple Creek, and who can say with any certainty that mining will not be revived there again some day.

Many oldtimers and mining men contend there is probably as much gold still in the Cripple Creek district as was ever mined—and that one day conditions will be right for mining to resume.

The rest of the legend, the mayor said, is certainly just as appropriate today as it was in 1912.

Although the Air Force Academy is the greatest tourist attraction in the region, Pikes Peak has been and will forever remain an inseparable part of the scenic beauty of Colorado Springs, he added.

The mayor said that cleanliness was symbolic with such things as a clean city, wide streets and all other things that give a city a planned appearance.

In order to maintain such an appearance, he added, it is essential that the best interests of the entire city be kept in mind, especially in actions by the Planning Commission and City Council.

The mayor said that the park system surrounding the city was a priceless heritage and that the status quo of that "green band about the shield" should be maintained. In fact, he added, the park system was probably more important now than in 1912, and will be more important 50 years from now than it is in 1965.

In any event, the city has an official flag.

And the mayor hopes that more people will become aware

Parking Meter Receipts Behind 1964

Gross receipts from the city's parking meters are about 11 per cent lower so far this year compared to the same period in 1964.

Receipts from the cigarette tax, on the other hand, are running about 12 per cent higher this year, according to James O'Leary, deputy city treasurer.

Parking meter receipts so far in 1965 total $34,122 compared to $35,782 for 1964

Greene Is Top Alpine Gal Skier

CRYSTAL MOUNTAIN, Wash. (AP) — Two of the world's happiest skiers today are Washington's Gov. Dan Evans — because it's over — and Nancy Greene of Canada, who took home six - sevenths of the women's trophies in the American International Ski Meet.

The governor, with only three or four spills and one stop for binding repairs, acted as fore-runner Sunday on the giant slalom course to open the final day of competition.

He crossed the finish line upright and wearing a smile only as big as the one little Miss Greene turned on Friday and hasn't turned off yet. The 21-year-old Rossland, B.C., girl absolutely crushed the finest and famous talent of Europe and America.

Canada scored, strongly in the men's division, too, when Peter Duncan of Montreal won the American combined championship and Scott Henderson of Banff, Alta, took second.

The best showing by any U.S. competitor came on the last day when Bill Marolt of Aspen, Colo., won the American giant slalom title by placing third behind two Europeans.

Jean Claude Killy of France attacked the 1.8 mile sun-stopped men's course as though its 84 gates were personal enemies dropping 2,400 feet off the mountain to victory in 2:45.08.

Karl Schranz of Austria was almost three seconds slower and Marolt trailed that ace of the Alps by nearly two seconds.

But the show belonged to freckle-faced Nancy, who has competed for Canada in the Olympics and won a title here and there but never before had made such a sensational sweep.

She placed fourth Friday in the downhill behind Christle Haas of Austria, Theres Obrecht of Switzerland and Christine Terrailon of France, but won the American title.

Saturday Nancy smashed through one of the toughest slalom courses ever set for feminine competition in an unbelievable 48.59. More than half the field of 34 women spilled out of contention.

Then Miss Greene whipped all the remaining girls again on the easier second route in 52.28. That earned her both the American title and the Silver Skis International trophy.

She scooted down the women's 1.4 mile giant slalom route Sunday in 2:05.36 to beat Olympic star Marielle Goitschel of France by just a gasp less than a full second. Two more trophies went with the triumph and the American combined title made it six pieces of gleaming hardware for Nancy.

The 39-year-old Republican governor noted that this was the first time a governor had opened a ski event by actually leading the way.

"And for this governor," he vowed, "it's the last."

Pitcher Don Drysdale Is Healthy, Effective While Other Chuckers Fail

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer
Stay loose, Don Drysdale. It's open season on Cy Young Award winners.

Dean Chance, 1964 recipient of baseball's top pitching prize, is taking his lumps — literally — this spring in exhibition play. Sandy Koufax and Whitey Ford, the 1963 and 1961 winners, respectively, have come in for more than their share of training camp troubles.

Of the last four pitchers to capture the award, only Drysdale has managed to stay both physically fit and effective against the hitters.

Chance, the Los Angeles Angels' brilliant 20-game winner, was knocked out of the box by a line drive Sunday — for the second time in the last two weeks — after facing only four hitters in his club's 6-0 loss to the San Francisco Giants.

The Angel ace, appearing in relief in the eighth inning, was clipped in the back of his right leg by Willie Mays' line smash and taken out of the game.

Chance was sidelined several days last month after being ace. Koufax said Saturday he will "learn to live with" the elbow trouble.

"I'll need more rest now instead of pitching every fourth day," the 29-year-old fireballer said. With Koufax out indefinitely, Manager Walt Alton has nominated Drysdale for the opening-day assignment at New York next week.

Drysdale, who took the Cy Young Award in 1962 with a 25-9 mark and won 18 games last year, has been strong in his exhibition appearances.

Ford has been hit freely in three of five training tests for the New York Yankees after a winter shoulder operation.

Veteran pitchers Don Elston of the Cubs and Chuck Estrada of the Baltimore Orioles and Rick Reichardt, the Angels' $175,000 bonus outfielder, were among weekend roster casualties as clubs trimmed down to opening-day limits.

The Cubs released Elston. The Orioles optioned Estrada, 27, to Rochester of the International League. The Angels shipped Reichardt to Seattle of the Pacific Coast League.

The Cincinnati Reds won their 13th exhibition game in the last 14, whipping Detroit Sunday 4-3 as Frank Robinson drove in three runs. The St. Louis Cardinals slugged Kansas City 14-1, scoring 10 runs in the fourth inning.

Cookie Rojas' run-producing single in the 10th inning lifted Philadelphia past Baltimore 4-3 and Ossie Virgil's three-run homer gave Pittsburgh a 9-8, 10-inning decision over the New York Mets.

Washington nipped the New York Yankees 4-3 on Ed Brinkman's decisive run-scoring triple in the sixth. Milwaukee's Tony Cloninger pitched the club's first complete game, topping Houston 3-1.

The Dodgers rocked the Chicago White Sox 8-5. Tommy Davis driving in his 25th and 26th runs of the spring. Dick Donavan's two-hit pitching for 7-1-3 innings paced Cleveland to a 7-1 victory over another Angel squad and Minnesota was joined 4-0 by its Denver, PCL, farm club.

Matson, Relay Teams Near World Shot, Mile Marks

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF
AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Two world record potentials came out of the Texas Relays, one needing only 1 1/4 inches and the other lacking just 3.4 seconds, which the coach says should be available and soon.

Randy Matson, the wondrous sophomore of Texas A&M, put his 260 pounds behind the 16-pound shot and threw it 67 feet 9 inches Saturday to come within one inch of the world's record of 67-10 held by his conqueror in the Olympic Games, Dallas Long of Southern California.

Randy will get his next chance to make up that little distance in a quadrangular meet among Texas, Baylor, Southern Methodist and Texas A&M at College Station Friday night.

"I hope to make it," said the modest cadet who never predicts he'll do anything. In fact, he usually comments, "I need to build up my strength."

Three comes after he has pitched the steel ball into the next county. And he immediately returns to the weights.

Texas Southern of Houston ran the mile relay in 3:07.8 — best in the nation this year — and needs just a little more effort to hit the world mark of 3:04.5, set by Arizona State in 1963.

Coach Stan Wright said he wasn't surprised at the time, because he knew he had the potential. "But I was surprised that we did so well when we were so far ahead."

Texas Southern won by 30 yards with Ray Saddler running a fantastic 45.4 on the anchor leg.

Texas Southern will go to Mexico City April 16-17 to compete in an international meet that has three teams from the United States and teams from the Latin countries.

"We just might make it down there," said Wright, who pointed out that he had a runner, Clyde Duncan, who is ineligible for college meets but can run in open competition, and that Duncan is better than his leadoff man, Jose Villalonga. Villalonga had a 48.1 in the Texas relays. Duncan does it in 46.9.

ond flat victory in the 60-yard hurdles.

New Mexico, meanwhile, won 13 of 17 events and handed Southern Cal its first loss in a dual meet since 1962, and only its third in 20 years.

A pair of Maryland jumpers, Dick Cole and Frank Costello, set meet and track records at Columbia, S.C., in leading the Terrapins to a team victory over a host of other teams. Cole went 24-11 1/4 in the broad jump and Costello 6-11 1/4 in the high.

High winds and low temperatures combined to cut into times and distances in the huge Kentucky Relays at Lexington, but Jim Albrecht of Northwestern managed a 15-6 pole vault.

The biggest surprise was the three-quarter inch victory by four batters. Willie Mays' line drive then struck him in the back of his right leg, causing his removal from play.

Bold Lad Romps at Aqueduct

By ORLO ROBERTSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Kentucky Derby had a bold hue today with Bold Lad ready to take on the best 3-year-old thoroughbreds in the land at Churchill Downs May 1.

The strapping son of Bold Ruler-Misty Morn from the Wheatley Stable erased any doubts as to his recovery from two popped splints in his forelegs when he romped to victory over four older horses in a six-furlong race at Aqueduct last Saturday.

Making his first start since wrapping up the 1964 2-year-old championship by winning the Champagne last Oct. 17, Bold Ruler ran off the early pace, then turned on the pressure in the home stretch and won by three lengths in 1:10 3/5 without any urging by jockey Braulio Baeza.

"He came out of the race in fine shape," said trainer Bill Winfrey Sunday. "His next start will be in the Wood and then, if all goes well, he'll be off for the Derby, which has been his chief objective all along with the Preakness and Belmont Stakes."

Meantime, Flag Raiser, Native Charger, Tom Rolfe and Swift Ruler moved up in pre-Derby figuring as the future of the well-rated Jacinto remained clouded and two other highly regarded horses, Isle of Greece and Turn to Reason, loomed in their stalls with sore shins.

Flag Raiser, a speed demon, took the $7,400 Gotham at Aqueduct by four lengths with a 1:36 3/5 clocking for the one mile after ripping off the first six furlongs in 1:10 4/5. Trainer Hirsch Jacobs, who also trains Isle of Greece and Turn to Reason, said he plans to run Flag Raiser in the 1 1/4 miles of the Wood April 17.

Native Charger, for whom Major Albert Warner paid $20,500 as a yearling, added the Florida Derby to his flamingo credentials with a neck triumph over the stretch running Hail to All in the 1 1/4 mile $119,800 Gulfstream Park feature. His time was a comparatively slow 1:51 1/5 under 122 pounds.

Tom Rolfe, owned by Raymond Guest, U.S. to Ireland, turned in a good race in taking a one-mile event at Laurel in 1:38 3/5, the best clocking of the Maryland track's 18-day-old meet. He may come back in next Saturday's Chesapeake over the same track.

Howe Paces Wings' Win Over Hawks in Playoffs

By ROGER GOELZ
DETROIT (AP) — Gordie Howe, with 133 playoff games behind him, proved again Sunday night why National Hockey League coaches go with veterans in Stanley Cup play.

Howe, 37-year-old backbone of the Detroit Red Wings, rammed in two fast goals on Chicago rookie goalie Denis DeJordy and sparked the Wings to a 6-3 rout of the Black Hawks in the second game of their best-of-7 semi-final cup series.

Howe's 58th and 59th Stanley Cup goals combined with power play scoring by Norm Ullman and Eddie Joyal gave Detroit a 2-0 lead in the series which moves to Chicago Tuesday and Thursday nights.

Detroit's scoring spree dimmed another excellent performance by the Hawks' Bobby Hull.

Hull matched Howe with two-third-period goals but the Hawks were unable to match the Wings' power plays.

She said there were also four uninvited guests at the party, and that two of them during the evening had been in a bedroom where the coats and purses were being kept. The theft was not discovered until 11:40 p.m. Saturday, according to police.

Penny Kay Norton had $20 in currency in her purse.

Margaret Louise Haley, 3912 Templeton Gap Rd., had $5 and an oil company credit card taken from her purse.

Pikes Peak Gets More Moisture

City watersheds on Pikes Peak received about .35 of an inch of moisture from the Sunday storm.

Roy Knull, caretaker on the South Slope, said the rain turned to snow in the late afternoon and piled up three inches of the white stuff before the storm ended in the early evening.

Low temperature at 9,000 foot Ruxton Park early Monday was 15 degrees above.

March precipitation at Ruxton Park was 1.75 inches, which was about one third of an inch above average.

Knull said there were some deep snow drifts above Ruxton Park on the city watershed proper. Some of the drifts are 10-12 feet deep at Lake Moraine.

Government Operations in Finance Could Destroy U.S., LeFevre Says

Government's continued operation in the fields of finance will eventually destroy America, Robert LeFevre said today in Wichita, Kan.

LeFevre, dean of Rampart College and former editor of the Gazette Telegraph, spoke at a luncheon meeting today before the Wichita Rotary Club on the subject of "Money."

He defined money as "anything that can be used as a medium of exchange" because "men live by barter." LeFevre pointed out, however, that simple barter "in any kind of a dynamic, high-voltage economy is out of the question."

He listed the three kinds of media used today in all exchange or barter as commodity money, fiat money, and credit. Commodity money is a "good," LeFevre said. "It can be any kind of good which people wish to use as money."

Fiat is paper money. "Specifically, fiat money is government paper," LeFevre said, "wherein the government, by decree, declares that a particular bit of printing is money."

"Such money does not appear in the market place until there has been a fairly long history of government dominance of a market or government intrusion into the market," he explained.

"The fiat process appears when government enters the market as one of the suppliers, or as the monopolist supplier of money," LeFevre said. "When the government enters this field, the tendency is for government first to issue paper certificates, after the manner of regular bankers."

"But presently," he said, "due to the nature of politics and money, government begins systematically to introduce what can be called irredeemable currency."

"That is," he explained, "it prints paper which does not pretend to represent a commodity, but which purports to be money."

The third type, credit, LeFevre described as "a kind of money for it facilitates exchanges, but the characteristic of credit is that it relates exclusively to incomplete exchanges."

"In many ways," he said, "credit is the most convenient money there is."

"Credit is actually the major medium of exchange today all around the world," LeFevre pointed out.

"The safest money we can use is probably gold or silver," LeFevre said, "on the basis of our present technology. The least safe money is government fiat money. And the very worst combination in the field of money issues when government begins to issue fiat money, and uses as its justification the credit of the government established by the government's ability to tax its citizens or to borrow from them."

"Equally pernicious," he added, "is money printed by monetizing debts."

LeFevre cited two concepts, Gresham's Law and Watt's Law, which must be kept in mind before considering the present situation in the United States as it relates to gold and silver.

A British subject during the reign of Henry VII, Sir Thomas Gresham observed that when the government entered the money market, it invariably had the power to declare what commodities were to be used as money. He further noted that no government ever confined itself to a single commodity to be used as money, pointing to the king who declared copper and alloys money along with gold and silver.

The result was quickly apparent in the market, LeFevre said, for the genuine silver coins disappeared while the spurious, often entirely legal counterfeit, remained in circulation.

This led to the solid silver coins being increased in value through scarcity. Gresham's law reads: "When the king doth declare that two unlike metals are to be traded at equal value, the bad money driveth away the good."

LeFevre observed that "insofar as the coinage in use in this country is concerned, we now have a precise illustration of the working of Gresham's Law."

"At the moment," he said, the government has openly declared its intention of debasing our present silver coinage. The reason given, he said, is there is a shortage of silver. "Actually," he said, "there is no shortage at all. There is far more silver still in the ground than has ever been removed. The same is true of gold."

The government's claim that slot machines are gobbling up the coins, LeFevre said is preposterous. "The shortage arises because of hoarding," he said.

"Another factor is the heavy control of mining operations exerted by minimum wage laws, labor union intervention in the field of wages, and government priorities in respect to mined ores," he explained.

Prof. V. Orval Watts, one of America's fine economists, has praised the necessary corollary to Gresham's Law, LeFevre said.

"He saw that if the government did not have a monopoly in the control of money or credit, but if people could trade as money they deemed sound, then few would be willing to accept any spurious or counterfeit money."

"There would be no such thing as legal tender," LeFevre continued, "thus, Watt's Law has it that in a free money market, and lacking government intervention, good money will drive out the bad."

LeFevre noted that when the U.S. Government first entered the money field (in 1789), it declared by fundamental law that gold and silver were both to be considered as legal tender.

In order to create a willingness on the part of the public to accept either gold or silver coins," he said, "Congress further declared a ratio between the two metals. One unit of gold was to be the equivalent of 16 units of silver."

What happened in the market after just this modest fiat, he said, was that gold began to disappear from the markets of the dominant metal in circulation.

To offset this, Congress ruled for a different ratio, increasing the units of silver in respect to gold.

"The effect in the market was not halted," he said, "gold went up in value, silver dropped. Government, perpetually rebellious against Sir Thomas Gresham, refused to believe it. It proclaimed that the real reason for the larger acceptance of silver was that silver was more plentiful. And of course after the Comstock lode was uncovered and silver became more plentiful, this fact added to the general trend."

"Silver in exchange appeared by government standards to be inadequate," he said, "and the government resorted to banking procedures."

The reaction in the market? Silver began to disappear from circulation and the market dealt in paper certificates. Further, LeFevre explained, gold certificates tended to be held in higher esteem than silver certificates and people held onto them, dealing in silver certificates almost exclusively.

In the 30's, the government withdrew all gold certificates and a great amount of the silver ones, and issued Federal Reserve notes. To back up these notes, a law was enacted which required the government keep on deposit 25 per cent of the total currency in circulation in the form of gold.

However, LeFevre pointed out, "no individual person could exchange his currency for gold. Gold became a forbidden metal as money. It was restricted to commodity usages domestically, with a few minor exceptions."

"The major supply of gold held by the United States, now in monopoly control," he said, "was held in reserve to redeem claims against it made by foreign governments or by persons in foreign countries who wished to redeem American currency in gold."

This, he said, created a "major dichotomy in foreign exchange."

Nations began crying of a "dollar shortage." They would buy more of our products if they would only accept their currencies, victimized by enormous inflation. Thus if they had American dollars with which to make purchases, our foreign trade would expand.

"It is implicit here," LeFevre noted, "that although a given citizenry may trust its own government, no government trusts another government."

So rather than trust a shaky currency in another country, the U.S. established foreign aid.

"Today, in nearly every country where we have extended foreign aid, there is no longer a dollar shortage," he said, "instead, there is a dollar surplus."

All this has led to international poker games; if the U.S. cuts off foreign aids, countries in turn will redeem their surplus dollars in gold. If they redeem their holdings, the U.S. may stop foreign aid.

"Right now, foreign powers are beginning to pressure us for redemption of their surplus dollar holdings in gold," LeFevre said, "The President does not dare stop foreign aid. For him to do so would virtually wipe out our entire gold reserve."

The conservatives cry, "Stop foreign aid, or reduce it, and the balance of payments will arrive," LeFevre said. "With this stoppage, however, will come a major demand for redemption. It went on, 'foreign aid is the pressure device the government has in its arsenal.'"

Another cry, he said, is "Why have gold at all? We have demonstrated by our increasing business and our growing affluence without gold in circulation, that we really don't need commodity money."

This, he said, is tantamount to saying, "Let foreigners have the gold; we can manage without it nicely."

"Thus, our own government, while trying to placate foreigners, is confronted with a dreadful dilemma," he said, "it cannot hold still. It cannot repudiate its promises without direful consequences. It cannot change the value of gold without a runaway inflation. It hasn't enough gold to fulfill existing obligations."

LeFevre said the solution to "our money problem will only be approached when we learn that government should never be granted the slightest authority in this area."

Opera Closes Season With Light Music

By JOHN FETLER
ARTS CRITIC

What has been probably the best season so far for opera in Colorado Springs, was brought to a close over the weekend with the performance of Die Fledermaus by Strauss, by the Colorado Springs Opera Assn., at Wasson High auditorium.

Selection of Wasson High for these productions proved to be the most fortunate for the audiences which have filled the auditorium, providing them not only with a fine stage, and ample parking space, but also with a beautiful hall.

The pit orchestra was of ample proportions, and the director, Dr. J. Julius Baird gave the performance verve and vigor, presenting one of those happy, light-hearted works, with a cast of singers who could be easily heard in the big auditorium, with quite good projection of voices, and with operatic acting which fitted the occasion excellently.

In brief, it was a charming opera, a comedy, the kind which Colorado Springs audiences always enjoy, promising more of the same for the coming seasons, as the opera association has survived, one might say, a shakedown cruise in excellent shape, as far as performance is concerned, and we hope, inspiring the opera supporters to generous support for the coming season.

The voices of the singers were well balanced in their roles, so that the opera could function in a true company spirit, with William Beatty, Harriet Brooks, Dale Soucek, Florence Bryant, Rolfe Zinner, Lloyd Owens, Jerry Teske, Sondra Smull, Crawford Scott, and Willard Smull, and also Marshall Cross.

The ballet proved to be highly entertaining, with James Francis and Judy May in the pas de deux, and the corps of ballet composed of Cindy Winn, Trina DeLaney, Judy Keaton, Jackie Smith, Angela Nickols, Paula Cheever, Debbie Henderson and Susan Wright.

The sets were clever, yet economical, designed by Walter Wilson, and special mention should be made of the costumes, specially in Act II, in the Hall of Prince Orlofsky's Palace, which was one of the brightest scenes of all the operas presented so far. In charge of the wardrobe department were Trudie McDonald and Karen Onufrook.

The stage direction by Raymond Thomas shows an experienced operatic hand, placing the singers at the best strategic locations, to take full advantage of their voices.

Two items that were announced in the program will be of interest to the supporters of the opera: A special post-season production, entitled Opera Cameos, will be presented Sunday, May 16, at 3 p.m., at the Fine Arts Center, presenting favorite scenes and arias from operas and operettas. And William McMillen of Colorado College will conduct a six-week summer session in stage and action techniques for singers for a limited number of opera singers, which should enrich the stage techniques for singers in Colorado Springs.

The selections for the next season are equally promising. They will be The Marriage of Figaro, by Mozart, a most challenging and demanding opera; Verdi's equally challenging The Masked Ball, and the ever popular light opera, Tales of Hoffman by Offenbach.

Date-Line

By Ele and Walt Dulaney

One of our favorite pastimes is chatting with young "Date-Line" readers. We especially enjoy the open season segment of our discussions when the audience can toss any questions at us.

Here is a trio of inquiries that popped in recent sessions. Read them over. Decide what you'd have said. Then compare your answers with ours. (To get the full flavor of this game, you have to pretend there are anywhere from 15 to 1,500 folks waiting to hear your off-the-cuff remarks.)

Ready for the questions?

1. Walt, what would you do if you were at a dance with your date, and you bent down to pick up something and your pants ripped?

2. Ele, how can a girl say "no" to a very aggressive date, and still keep him interested in her?

3. Walt, if you were riding in a car, and nature called, what could you do without causing embarrassment to you or your date?

Well, those are the questions. What would you suggest in these three instances? Then compare your answers with our on-the-spot verdicts.

1. "Well, first I'd sneak a hand back and survey the damage as casually as I could. If it were minor, I'd just be careful when I sat down. If it were a rip that could be easily spotted, I'd blush a minute, then confess to my date what had happened."

"I'd enlist her aid to borrow a needle and thread from a female chaperone or a rest room attendant, while I retreated to the men's room. If she could locate the needle and thread, I'd mend the britches the best I could. If not? Then, I guess I'd have to drive home for another pair of pants."

2. "Two things are at stake in this situation: the girl's honor and the boy. If she can keep both, fine, but if one has to go, let it be the boy. She should put her decision to the boy frankly: 'Jerry, I like you a lot, but I'm not going to act like anybody's wife until I get married. If you've got to make-out to have an enjoyable evening, then I guess I'm not the girl for you. I'd miss you, but it's up to you.'

"If she puts things like this, she has a good chance of having her cake and eating it, too."

3. "Don't waste time being embarrassed about nature. Pull into the nearest service station and say, 'I'm going to the men's room; would you like to freshen up in the ladies' room?' There's no need to comment further."

Those are our answers to three etiquette situations. How old you do? Since these are matter - of - opinion problems, your replies may be better than ours. Drop us a line if you came up with other verdicts so we can share them with our readers. You can write us in care of this paper. (A Bell-McClure Syndicate Feature)

Freeman Denounces ADA Farm Proposal

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman took the liberal Americans for Democratic Action — ADA — to task today for what he said was a reactionary farm policy that would inaugurate an era of scarce, high-cost food.

He said the organization's proposal to phase out price support programs in favor of programs for low-income farmers and for bringing farm workers under the minimum wage has no factual basis.

"Neither of these actions will even begin to equip the nation to deal with complex challenges of rural America in transition," Freeman said in a speech prepared for ADA's 18th annual convention.

Phasing out the commodity programs, he said, would reduce net farm income from $12.6 billion a year to less than $6 billion.

And at a time when fewer than 400,000 farmers earn as much as skilled labor wages, the ADA proposal, he said, would consign many of the most successful "to the poverty heap."

Freeman has long been a member of ADA.

Maryland Priest Leads Crusade Against License

NEW YORK (AP) — A Maryland priest who is leading the Traditionalist Movement in a protest over Roman Catholic liturgical changes has called for a national referendum to determine the sentiment of Catholics.

The Rev. Gommard Albert De Pauw, 46, of Mount St. Mary's Seminary at Emmitsburg, Md., claims Roman Catholic doctrine is at stake in current church trends.

He repeated his charges Friday that American Catholics have been "brainwashed by extremists of the clergy," who he said have sold the people the idea that changes in the liturgy are mandatory. They are permissive, Father De Pauw said.

He also maintained that current influences were "downgrading devotion" to Mary and "trying to destroy the sacrificial character of the Mass."

Things have gone so far, Father De Pauw said, that celebration of Masses at Fordham University turned into a "hoo-tananny atmosphere." What bothered him, he said, was that in these Masses, offered four times a week by a priest facing the people from behind the altar, music is furnished by a guitarist with psalms set to the music of such tunes as "Michael, Row the Boats Ashore" and "Greensleeves."

He stressed he was not pressing for a ban on the vernacular Mass, but for a limitation of its use to "some Sunday low Masses and not more than once during the week."

Asked who the extremists influences were, Father De Pauw named several internationally prominent Catholic scholars, including Fathers Bernard Harring and Hans Kung, European theologians, and Fathers Gregory Baum, Frederick McManus, George Tavard and John Courtney Murray, noted American scholars.

Fulbright Urges More Attention at Home

BLACKSBURG, Va. (AP) — Sen. J. W. Fulbright, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said today it is time to quit paying so much attention to the affairs of other nations and pay more to the problems of education, health, jobs and poverty at home.

The Arkansas Democrat said in a speech prepared for delivery at Virginia Polytechnic Institute that without abandoning any vital interests abroad, Americans should focus their attention on putting their domestic house in order.

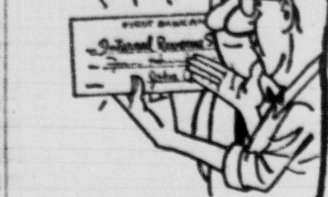

"Clearly," he said, "the time has come to divert some portion of our material and intellectual energies from the challenge of Communism abroad to the challenge of improvement at home."

He criticized "the premise that the United States has a vital interest in just about every country in the world."

"In fact," he said, "many things happen in many places that are either none of our business or in any case are beyond the range of our power, our resources and our wisdom."

Tormenting Rectal Itch Stopped In Minutes

Science Finds New Healing Substance That Promptly Stops Itching and Pain of Piles

New York, N. Y. (Special) — One of the most common afflictions is a condition known as "itching piles." It is most embarrassing for the victim during the day and especially aggravating at night.

No matter what you've used without results — here's good news. For the first time, science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to promptly stop the burning itch and pain. It actually shrinks hemorrhoids — without surgery. Medical science has proved this substance produces a remarkably effective rate of healing. Its germ-killing properties also help prevent infection.

In one hemorrhoid case after another "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by a doctor's observations. This improvement was maintained in cases where a doctor's observations were continued over a period of months! Among these sufferers were a wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions, some of 10 to 20 years' duration.

The secret is this new healing substance (Bio-Dyne®) — discovery of a world-famous research institution. This substance is now obtainable in ointment or suppository form known as Preparation H®. Ask for Preparation H® Suppositories (convenient to carry if away from home) or Preparation H Ointment with special applicator. Available at all drug counters.
